Authorities reported closing in on assassin

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — As the shot that killed Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. reverberated around the world Friday, there were hints that authorities may be closing in on his stealthy assassin.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark flew here from Washington and later told newsmen: "We've got some substantial leads. We're very hopeful. We've got some good breaks. There is no evidence at this time of any conspiracy."

Meanwhile, sporadic Negro violence occasioned by the shocking murder, died away in a number of American cities, but flared anew in Washington in midafternoon.

In Washington, the crisis caused by King's death led President Johnson to cancel his trip to Hawaii, planned as a preliminary to possible peace talks with the North Vietnamese.

Johnson also declared Sunday a day of national mourning for the 39-year-old King, ordered American flags to half staff at U.S. military installations

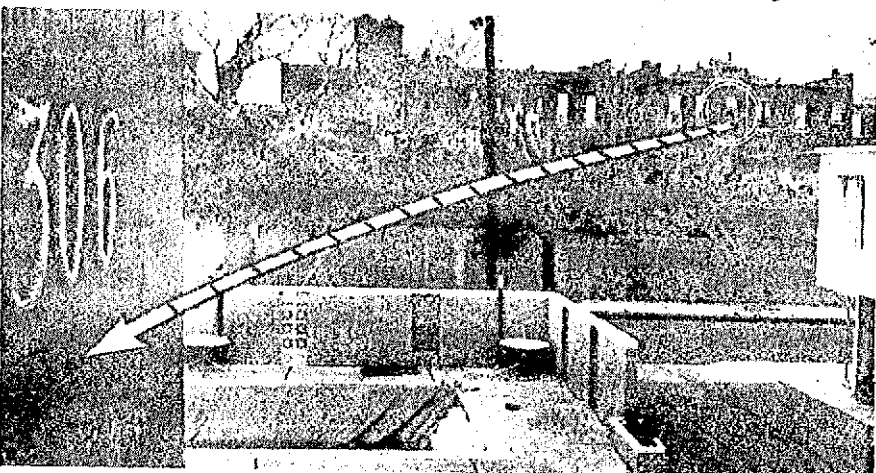

Drawing of suspect in King murder

President Johnson postponed his departure for Honolulu for Vietnam policy talks and held a hastily called conference in Washington with civil rights leaders. He told them "the dream of Martin Luther King has not died with him."

Not invited to the meeting was Black Power militant Stokely Carmichael. An apostle of violence as King was an apostle of nonviolence, Carmichael at a news conference urged that Negroes take to the streets with guns to "kill off the real enemy."

"We have to retaliate for the death of our leaders," he added. "The execution of those debts will not be in the courtrooms. They will be in the streets of the United States of America. When white America killed Dr. King she opened the eyes of every black man in this country."

The threat of just such a blood bath was uppermost in the minds of many persons in many parts of the world, stunned at the slaying of King.

This view from Dr. Martin Luther King's room looks toward the building from which a sniper's shot is thought to have come Thursday, killing King. The window circled is that of a common bathroom believed to be the room from which the shot was fired. (UPI Telephoto)

Philadelphia under limited emergency

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Mayor James H. Tate, as a precautionary measure, declared a state of limited emergency Friday night in Philadelphia. Police immediately began closing all taprooms.

Under the proclamation persons cannot congregate in groups of 12 or more in public streets or sidewalks.

Police and the National Guard moved swiftly into Detroit's 12th Street area Friday and put down violence that erupted in the wake of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Michigan Gov. George Romney said an 18-year-old Negro, a suspected looter, was accidentally shot to death in Highland Park, which is surrounded by Detroit.

Federal troops called to Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Burning and looting scourged three Washington Negro sections Friday night, and 4,000 federal and National Guard troops were deployed to deal with the violence which spilled into main downtown areas.

Firemen were pelted by rocks and bottles as they battled flames in one virtually all-Negro neighborhood. Gunfire in another area forced firefighters to withdraw.

Flames were raging in three separate sections of Washington's vast Negro population centers.

Flames were reported burning almost solidly along a stretch of nearly a mile of northeast Washington's I Street.

At 7 p.m. more than 30 fires were reported still burning while dozens of others had burned out. Most of the property destroyed was small stores although some larger ones suffered damage.

Hundreds of establishments were the victims of looting.

Violence sparked by the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in Memphis brought death Thursday night to one white man, injury to 56 persons and the arrests of 200.

Arrests continued after the burning and looting were resumed Friday morning and by dusk 274 had been booked on various charges.

Up until dark Friday there was no confirmed serious sniping although there were reports of some sporadic gunfire.

Figures on injuries were not available.

In midafternoon, President Johnson ordered troops in at the request of city officials. A short time later, Washington's Negro mayor, Walter Washington, declared a dusk-to-dawn curfew and halted the sale of alcoholic beverages, gasoline in containers and guns and ammunition.

A city spokesman reported three people were killed and 350 injured. The rampage seized three Negro neighborhoods.

Most of the damage was being done by small, seldom more than 100, bands of mostly young Negro youths and girls, totaling perhaps some thousands of the city's half-million Negroes.

During the day, the looters and burners had an almost jovial air as they laughingly committed their crimes without a great deal of hindrance from outnumbered policemen.

A pall of black smoke hung over wide sections of the federal city which had escaped major violence during the hot summers of the past two years.

A spokesman for the District of Columbia said about 1,000 policemen were on duty. Johnson sent in federal troops after proclaiming a "condition of domestic violence and disorder."

Trio killed in Chicago

Snipers shoot down two men

CHICAGO (AP) — Two men were shot and killed by snipers Friday night in a West Side area hit by extensive fires and looting, police said.

Police said the two men were shot by snipers on West Madison Street where buildings over a 16-block area were damaged by fire.

The men were not identified immediately.

Earlier police reported a Negro woman was shot and killed by a sniper on the North Side but said later she apparently had been killed during a quarrel.

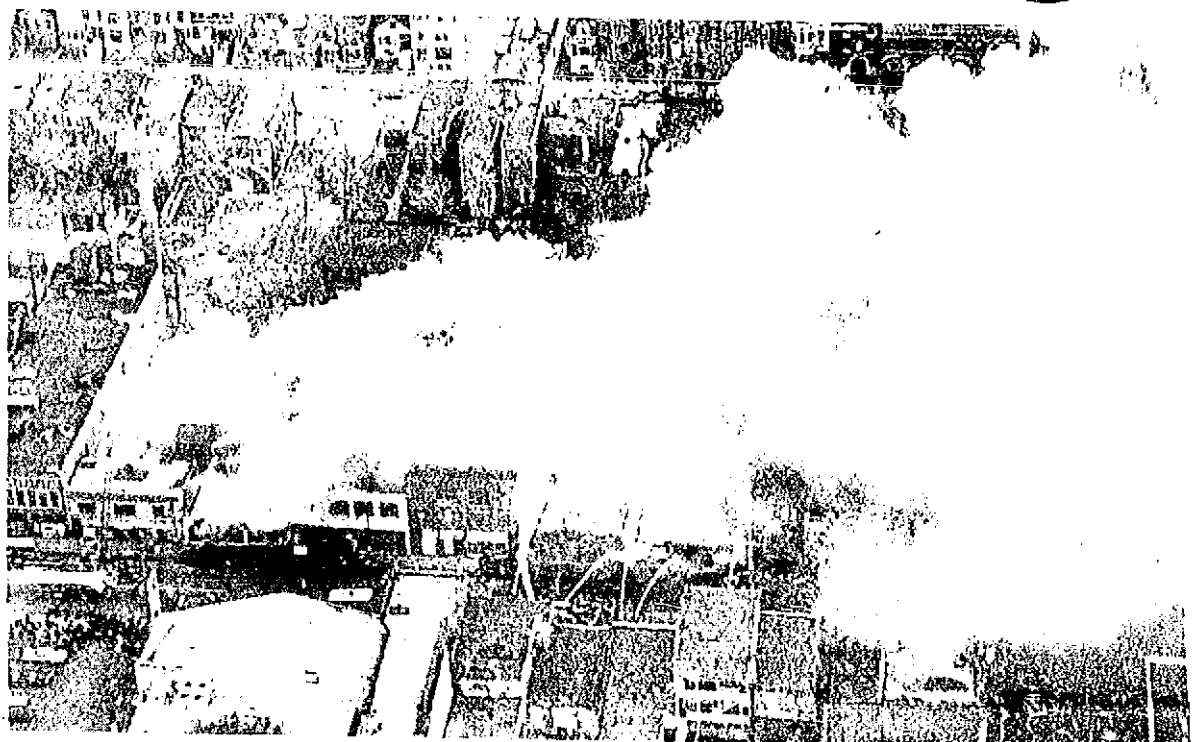

National Guardsmen were ordered to go into the streets at 10 p.m. CSF Brig. Gen. Richard T. Dunn, guard commander, said the 5,000 troops would be armed but were to return fire only when their lives were in danger.

Fires swept through a predominantly Negro neighborhood on West Madison Street and police reported extensive looting. One man was found dead in a burned out grocery store in the area.

A fireman, Walter Rzozca, was shot in the leg while fighting a fire. His injury was described by hospital officials as slight.

A series of fires broke out Friday night about 12 blocks southwest of the Loop on Roosevelt Road.

Earlier, 6,000 National Guardsmen reported to armories in Chicago ready for deployment.

to troubled areas where roaming bands of Negro youths smashed windows and looted stores.

Witnesses said portions of a 16-block area on West Madison Street were a solid mass of fire and smoke. The fire department issued five alarms for the fires and later added four special alarms.

The fires started in the 2400 block of West Madison, three miles from the Loop, and extended to the 4000 block.

Witnesses reported seeing looters leave a furniture store with appliances and furniture and set the building on fire.

"They won't loot very much more because this area is going to be burned down pretty soon," a policeman told a reporter at the scene.

Crowds in the area reportedly taunted police and firemen, velling,

"A white man killed Martin Luther King." Police said bricks and bottles were being thrown at firemen.

The guardsmen were ordered to immediate duty Friday by Lt. Gov. Samuel Shapiro in Springfield, acting on instructions from Gov. Otto Kerner who is in Florida.

The guardsmen were requested by Mayor Richard J. Daley and Chicago Police Supt. James B. Conlisk.

Conlisk also ordered all police working Friday to remain on duty until further notice.

Many offices and businesses in the downtown area closed early. Storefronts were boarded on the West Side, the predominantly Negro area where racial rioting occurred in 1965 and 1966.

Rev. King's funeral on Tuesday

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The funeral of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. will be held Tuesday beginning at 10:30 a.m. (EST) at Ebenezer Baptist Church, where the slain civil rights leader and his father, Martin Luther King Sr., were copastors.

A spokesman for the Southern Christian Leadership Council said Friday that following the services there will be a march to Morehouse College, a predominantly Negro institution in Atlanta that King once attended.

A memorial service will be held there, the spokesman said. He said King's family felt the funeral and the march would represent three important elements in the Negro leader's life: his church and religion, his education and intellect and the use of the peaceful march as part of his work.

The spokesman said King's family felt the public announcement of the funeral arrangements would serve in place of individual invitations as an expression of welcome to all of King's followers and friends wanting to attend the services.

Earlier Friday, Mrs. King, clad in black and her eyes swollen, brought the body of her husband home from Memphis. Several hundred mourners surged around the place.

She had flown to Memphis at 9:30 a.m. Friday in a plane chartered for her by Sen. Robert Kennedy, to claim her husband's body.

World reaction

Many expressions of sorrow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Expressions of sorrow at the death of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. mingled across the world Friday with expressions of concern about what his assassination and the reaction to it might mean for the United States.

Expressions of sorrow came from kings, emperors, and statesmen. Communist governments castigated the United States and the Soviet Union's official newspaper, Izvestia, used its largest headlines to proclaim: "USA is a country of violence and racism."

Pope Paul VI, who had met King at the Vatican in 1964, appealed for calm and respect of the principle of "brotherly love." Told of the civil rights leader's slaying just after he woke, the pontiff said he was "profoundly grieved."

In Australia, evangelist Billy Graham said his friend's death was "dreadful" and expressed fear it would lead to anarchy and civil war in the United States. Without a spiritual awakening, he said, democracy in America is doomed.

In Africa, where King was a hero, his death brought a prediction of violence in U.S. cities from Ghana radio. Among the continent's leaders, President Hamani Diori of Niger said he hoped "King's sacrifice was not in vain, bringing more peace and quiet to his race."

From Dakar, Senegal, West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt said: "His death must be an appeal for consideration and must not trigger another phase of force."

Wild crowd moves into Manhattan

NEW YORK (AP) — Crowds of Negroes moved into midtown Manhattan Friday night, smashing windows along Broadway, Sixth and Seventh avenues and looting some stores.

Reluctant police arrested about 15 youths at Broadway and 42nd Street, part of a group of about 150 that gathered in Times Square and refused to move.

Another group of some 25 youths raced through the intersection at Eighth Avenue and 48th Street with police in pursuit.

Police arrested about seven more youths in front of the Allied Chemical Building, formerly the Times Tower—at Broadway and 42nd Street when they refused to move.

The area was saturated with police.

Cherry Blossom Festival off

Among the events cancelled were the festival ball Friday night, at which the festival queen was to have been chosen, the festival parade Saturday and coronation pageants Saturday and Sunday.

Three psalms deliver strength

By HELEN HAYES
Noted Stage Star

I have never felt satisfied with my own made-up prayers. So I very often turn to David, the Psalms, or Paul, the Epistles.

They are my favorites; they roar and they sing—they never wheedle or whine. They have provided me with sustenance on many occasions, but three particular times stand out.

During World War II when the news came over the radio announcing that D-Day had begun, it was as if the radio had sent me a personal message.

I knew at that moment that my husband, Charles MacArthur, must be in that invasion. He had written from London that "lively doings" were coming up.

So when the news came that we were sending boats onto the beaches, I suspected he would be in one of them. And it was true—Charles was in the second wave. So I did what so many others did that June morning in 1944—I ran to church. I wanted to say a prayer.

New one
The church in Nyack, N. Y., was full when I arrived, and I took my place in the back. From the little rack in front of me I picked up the Psalter—David, my ever-present friend in need.

I began searching for the 121st Psalm—one of my favorites—when I came upon one new to me, the 93rd Psalm.

"The Lord reigneth, He is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith He hath girded Himself; the world also is established, that it cannot be moved."

It was exactly what I needed. The words were like balm to a tortured spirit. They calmed me and set me walking out of church with my head high and new courage in my heart. I knew then I would not disgrace Charlie.

Later there was that time in my life when I had drifted away from formal religion and a closeness to God. In the years when it seemed that nothing could ever go wrong, I came to think, as William Ernest Henley had written in his "Invictus," that I was master of my fate and the "captain of my soul."

And then there came the moment of tragedy. My daughter Mary died.

Desperate need
I felt the desperate need for help—beyond any one thing that anyone could give me. So I tried desperately to find my way back to complete acceptance of, and identity with, God as my friend and my strength.

Yet I found that I couldn't just say, "Well, now, I want faith—come on, where is that faith, it's got to come right in here," as if I could order faith like you order a good dinner. So there I was, for months desperate and in despair.

One night when I had been tossing in bed, sleepless, I sat up, turned on the light and reached for the Psalter. I'd always kept by my bed. I wanted to read the 93rd Psalm, the one that helped me so much on D-Day, but upon opening the Bible the 40th Psalm caught and held my attention.

Again and again
Again and again I read it, especially the first few verses and the last two.

"I waited patiently for the Lord; and He inclined unto me, and heard my cry."

"He brought me up also out of a horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings."

"And He hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God: many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord..."

"Let all those that seek Thee rejoice and be glad in Thee: let such as love Thy salvation say continually. The Lord be magnified."

"But I am poor and needy; yet the Lord thinketh upon me: Thou art my help, and my deliverer; make no tarrying, O my God."

I thought that if King David had had his moments of doubt and despair, yet could he be so patient, then I could too.

I remembered the lives of the saints. So many were involved in a struggle with faith. They had wavered and returned.

That night I understood that you must have patience—and that faith comes of itself, not by straining after it.

At mother's funeral

Then there was the occasion of my mother's funeral. All her life she had cherished the 23rd Psalm, and it has also been one of my favorites. So it was I who recited it at my mother's grave which we buried her. I stood alone with Charlie and my son Jim. Once in the recital I faltered and I remember Charlie steadying me with the pressure of his hand.

I Am A Clown -- I Like To Go To Church

I'm always glad to take time away from life's concerns and demands—yes, a clown has them—just to worship in peace and quiet. For me it is good to banish material thoughts and desires and set my mind on spiritual things. I am thankful for the opportunity to worship, meditate and pray. It is good for a clown to pray.

Occasionally I am so situated that I cannot attend church. It is then I realize what an opportunity and privilege it is to be living in a land where one may choose and attend the church of his choice. For the clown, as for anyone else, there can be deep down satisfaction in attending church.

Up Milford Way

Tree planting custom

By Norman B. Lehide

MILFORD — Milford has long been noted for her shade trees. This didn't just happen. In the early years of the village, a day was set aside during which the men of the town went into the swamps and woods and dug up young trees and planted them along the streets. The ladies of the town prepared a sumptuous meal as a reward to the workers.

From time to time, throughout the years, this early custom has been revived. The Milford Garden Club, an organization which has carried on an active and dedicated civic improvement and beautification program for over a decade, has sponsored these "Tree Bees" and, in the tradition of the Milford ladies of long ago, have also provided and served an excellent meal to all the workers.

This year another of the popular Bees will be held on Sunday, April 28. Just how does the affair operate? First, locations are determined where new trees need to be planted (at the present time, the Centre Square area is definitely in this category). Permission of any property owners involved is procured and the site is marked ahead of time. A source of new trees is also determined well before the big day.

WHEN THE WORKERS assemble at the fire house, which always serves as headquarters, they are split into groups and assigned to either digging holes for the trees (locations are marked) or digging and transporting the young trees. Since the Memorial Park is scheduled for a cleanup, a group of the day's activity, a job will be assigned to work there. There are always a number of "pros", foresters and conservationists, on hand to give expert advice whenever it is needed.

The Milford firemen are right in the middle of the program. They provide water for the planting from their tank equipment. (They also provide transportation around the village for the delighted small fry.)

When the work is finished, it is back to the firehouse for refreshments and more food than even the hungriest young men can consume.

In the past, it has both rained and snowed on the day of the Bees. It has been foggy and one year the firemen were called out of town about a half dozen times for grass fires in the area. However, the Tree Bee went on. The adverse conditions and the extra excitement just made the workers able to eat more when they were finished.

WHEN THE MILFORD Midget League meets on Monday evening, the agenda will be a busy one. The annual fund raising dance is scheduled to be held at the Laurel Villa Casino on Saturday, April 27, while the team tryouts will be held on the afternoon of Sunday, April 21.

The Milford Borough Council has again granted permission for the Girls Softball League (a two team circuit) to use the local ballfield on Tuesday evenings.

On Monday, the Blooming Grove Township Planning Board will hold the first meeting in a series of five sessions that will be oriented to acquaint the citizens of the township with subdivision regulations and other planning problems. The Pike County Extension Service will be assisting in the educational program.

The Marsch-Keillogg Post team of Milford shot a 2,880 series in the B2 League at the Port Jervis Lanes on Tuesday night. It was a new high team triple for the season. George Orben, leadoff man for the Legion team, totaled 682 to knock out his teammate Howard Brunhoelz by one pin for the high individual series of the season to date.

WAS GIFFORD Pinchot encouraged by his family to become a forester? Dr. Matthew J. Brennan, Director of the Pinchot Institute, can present some convincing evidence of such encouragement.

At the Institute, where Dr. Brennan has assembled many of Pinchot's books in a special forestry library, there are a number of books on the profession which were presented to the youthful Pinchot by his father and other members of the family. The inscription dates reach back into Pinchot's undergraduate days at Yale and even back into his prep school years.

Suspend eight Pen Argyl pupils

PEN ARGYL — Eight Pen Argyl Area High School students were suspended after a 14-year-old student was injured in an initiating rite in the high school this week, school officials revealed Friday.

Jeffery Horton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aldwin Horton of Nazareth, RD 3, was reported in satisfactory condition yesterday in Easton Hospital.

The eight pupils allegedly slapped Horton across the abdomen.

Communion set

BEAKLEYVILLE — The Beakleyville Baptist Church will observe Easter season communion on Palm Sunday, April 7 at 11 a.m.

Bradley Crawshaw refused to state when the eight students were suspended and for how long they will remain suspended.

Allen Jackson, high school principal, said that he did not know all of the facts concerning the incident. The incident occurred in the gymnasium Wednesday.

Jackson declined to discuss the situation thoroughly "until I have all the facts."

The initiation rite during which Horton was injured was described as "cherry belly." In this type of initiation, the student lies down on the floor and is slapped across the bare stomach until it turns red.

The eight suspended students are reported to be members of the track or baseball teams.

Spring on the farm: blood, sweat, tears

BY FRED WALTER
BRODHEADSVILLE —

Spring is here! So what! So think about it; this familiar, yet distinctive season that each year revives all sorts of eagerness in all life forms after a lengthy, wintry monotony.

The year bow brings us a vibrant earth; a pregnant earth, ready to burst with fruits and flowers and fragrance and colors.

No one escapes this incomparable feeling that penetrates the senses; awakens them to anxious sights and sounds and smells.

Yet, the real participation in this event is gradually narrowing down to those individuals that work with the soil — the true exponent of Spring, earth itself.

Tilled earth

Newly tilled ground can be seen forming dark and dominating patches among the emerging spectrum of greens. The land no longer is dormant, but ready to give life again.

Those fortunate enough to live and work on the farms are more aware of Spring perhaps, as also are those that brook ground in their little gardens and flower beds that border their homes. Others may retain some childhood memories that are revived each spring, of days on the farm.

There are times when this silly rhyme might be such a welcome memory; though little, I'll work as hard as a Turk, to plow and sow and reap and mow, and be a farmer's boy.

Of course, this romantic and sensual picture has changed as much as economies have altered the labor and market condition. Just as the mass shopping and discount centers are erasing the retail trend of the small local store, so have the many types of farms been forced to convert to extravagant means of producing more and better products.

Family farms

Even though most of the farm units still are family size, they all have had to find means of competing with prices and production. It has turned into a mean business venture, requiring ridiculous, though necessary, capital expenditures in land, building, equipment and machinery.

As automated as we want to get, the one singular, most necessary thing we must do to survive, is to break ground each year. The means of doing this may have changed terrifically since the one-horse plow, but it still is being done.

The facts say that farming has been on the decline in Monroe county and other areas. The facts also say that those remaining, produce more and better and do it faster than it has ever been done before. This is happening in the West End, less than half of the county area that is strong in farm production.

If there is one man that also thinks big today, it is the dairyman and the poultryman and other farm operators.

Blood, sweat, tears

Only these students of agriculture and the farm operator himself, know what it must take to make a success of it. It is many things, besides an act and a science. It is managing a business with thorough upkeep of the latest knowledge and of methods and techniques in land, crop and livestock management, breeding and feeding programs, diseases and pest controls, marketing economies and general financial knowledge; and this, although the emphasis varies, must be done 365 days in the year and it must be done by the man himself.

It is not unusual then, to find many of the successful farmers to be graduates of two and four year colleges. Farmers are important to the economy. They purchase a wide range of goods and services.

Of the 378 active farms in Monroe County, 35 produced more than $20,000; 74 produced between $5,000 and $20,000; and 77 between $1,500 and $5,000.

Total cash receipts from the sale of farm marketing in the county for 1965 totaled about four million dollars with poultry in the lead and dairy, then potatoes and other vegetables. The average capital investment, or assets, per farm are close to $50,000.

The 120 egg producing poultry farms have 56,000 average number of layers during the year which produce more than 11 million eggs.

Considering the arena stage at the Newfoundland Arts Center, he regards it as a real challenge.

Theater league forms in Pike

NEWFOUNDLAND — A new "Little Theatre" group, the Pocono Community Players, will be organized on Tuesday at 7 p. m. in the library at the Newfoundland Arts Center, under the direction of Robert Paulillo, of Greentown.

The Players, sponsored by the Newfoundland Theatre League, Inc., will be presenting "Come Blow Your Horn," the hilarious Neil Simon play, later this spring as their first offering of a series.

Stressing the fact that everyone interested in little theatre will be welcome, Paulillo pointed out the need for actors, lighting technicians and properties people. Casting for the first show will begin immediately, he said.

"The show is the funniest thing ever," the director noted.

"It is a fresh delightful comedy the New York critics called lively fun, warm-hearted and amusing. Ans it should be an excellent vehicle for out first appearance as a little theatre group in this area."

Paulillo, a native of Hoboken, N. J., comes to Greentown from North Bergen, N. J. An accounting major in Montclair State College, he was first involved in drama as a sophomore and has never recovered from the experience. He determined to change his major field, but was persuaded to remain and graduated with a bachelor's degree in Business Education with specialization in account ing. He went on to take his master's degree in speech and theatre arts, completing his thesis on theatre lighting.

Both a teacher and director of drama, he became also a technical director of the North Bergen Opera Association. He is a graduate of the Theatre Management course of the Musical Arena Theatre Association.

He has produced and directed "You Can't Take It With You," "A Mid Summer Night's Dream," "Teahouse of the August Moon," "Pygmalion," "My Three Angels," "Diary of Anne Frank," "Harvey," "Come Blow Your Horn," "Guys and Dolls," "Damn Yankees," "South Pacific," "Annie Get Your Gun," "Sound of Music," "How to Succeed in Business," and "My Fair Lady."

Richard Harris, one of the top stars in the stage and celluloid fantasy, will headline an all-star cast that will come into Carbon to grind out sequences which made the region famous back in the late 1800's.

The small mining village of Eckley, near Freehold, will be transformed to meet the needs of Paramount Studios. Also the Market Square in Jim Thorpe will get a face-lifting for the Molly Maguires sequences.

Regular tax collection required

STROUDSBURG — Business taxpayers and corporations who have not received supplies of Federal Tax Deposit forms should, nevertheless, make timely payments of the income and employment taxes.

This advice came from Seymour I. Friedman, District Director of Internal Revenue for Eastern Pennsylvania.

Mr. Friedman said that payments without the Federal Tax Deposit forms should be made to the Internal Revenue Service Center, 11601 Roosevelt Boulevard, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19155.

Payments should be accompanied by the following data: taxpayer's name and address, identification number, the type of tax, the tax period involved and the amount of tax.

Taxpayers should also indicate whether or not prior requests for Federal Tax Deposit forms have been made.

PV presents western play

BRODHEADSVILLE — The Pleasant Valley High School Junior Class will present a three-act western comedy, "They Went Thataway," 8 p.m. Saturday in the high school auditorium.

Charlotte Pelham is a wistful, appealing heroine. She is a city girl who has inherited a Rocky Mountain ranch, the Bar-B-Q, from her late uncle. With her side-kick, Lil Bower, Charlotte decides to go into the dude ranch business, but, operating on a shoestring, they find the sledding rough.

Then into Charlotte's life comes Freddy Buck, an impetuous master of ceremonies, who talks her into hiring him as a cowboy, a job for which he has no qualifications whatever.

The dudes start arriving, including Elmira Spring, an heiress from the East; Waxy and Slug, a couple of "tired" businessmen who carry sixty-five thousand dollars in an old shoe box; and Sue Castle, a Hollywood glamour girl.

All sorts of skulduggery take place until finally, Freddy Buck emerges as the savior of the ranch, to everyone's unfeigned amazement.

Martin Luther King dream unrealized

Rev. Martin Luther King died during one of the most peaceful moments he has ever known — standing alone on the balcony outside his quarters at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis.

King, long a leader of the Negro's cause, died as the result of a shot fired as he chatted with associates.

The Negro leader who fought for the Negro cause in a non-violent fashion, has been surrounded by a mounting amount of violence in recent months.

His refusal to heed warnings of those people who begged him not to stage another march in Memphis, brought death to King, with his life's work incomplete.

King was once regarded as the leading force behind the Negro cause in the United States, but many of his former supporters were of the opinion that he had lost control of his thousands of followers.

This fact was evident last Thursday when a band of young Negroes overran a march by King and ignited a riot in Memphis, where many were injured, one killed, stores looted and much damage inflicted.

Tireless leader

The 39-year-old King has been a tireless leader over the years, heading non-violent marches that skirted violence by the narrowest of margins. He had led his following in marches and demonstrations in virtually every major city in the United States.

Nobody can ever doubt King's sincerity, nor his courage. But, his wisdom at times has drawn much second guessing. He was blind to everything but the cause of his people—a brilliant trait in any man.

There are those, both Negro and White, who feel that King has saved the United States from true internal combustion and possible Civil War.

The fear of violence from a King march was so great that an injunction was granted in Memphis to halt another planned demonstration Friday. However, King insisted that the march would take place, even though he agreed to postpone it until Monday.

King branded the injunction as unconstitutional and said he would postpone the march, but that it would take place for sure Monday.

Rev. King was a deeply religious individual who conducted his life and his burning campaign with the Christian thought for his people uppermost in mind.

Never preached hate

King never preached hate, but rather believed that the Negro and White could live and work together. He wanted equality for his people and non-violent marches were his weapons.

This was the man who early in his days of leadership stood near the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C. and said, "I had a dream." He devoted his life to that dream in recent years, but never saw it fulfilled.

The Nobel Peace Prize winner of 1964 was a man of deep beliefs and too much courage. He lived for his people and even divided his financial gains from the Nobel Peace Prize among his followers.

Monday's march was to be in behalf of the sanitary department of Memphis, which is currently on strike.

Coin corner

Glow continues

By ROBERT SVENSSON

As coin collectors grow up they learn the facts of life. Somewhere along the line someone tells them about the United States Proof Sets. It could be the most important information they could learn about coins.

Next to gold, U. S. proofs are the apex of collecting. Space does not permit detailing the whole story in a single column; we have discussed proofs before, but now something is going on that makes them particularly newsworthy.

Briefly, U. S. proof coins are very special. They are handled by the U. S. Mint as a special operation and given unusual treatment that makes them almost jewel-like in appearance. They are, of course, our current coins, but dressed up in Sunday best. They are produced for collectors, but the general public has heard about them and has been buying in Value of the five is 91 cents. In past years the mint would supply these sets for $2.10. The 1968 sets, now being sold, are priced at five dollars. There are many years in which proofs have been omitted entirely.

They are available at the mint price only in the years in which they are issued. Once the year is ended or the mint runs off the sale, which has happened many times, they cannot be purchased from the mint again. Then you must buy from other collectors or dealers.

This method of restricted selling has resulted in a rising and falling market price. Generally prices have risen.

For example, a 1936 proof set is now worth about $850; a 1937 set brings close to $100. Even recent sets bring from six dollars to $140 each.

The Allen-Scott Report

F-111 involved in new probe

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — The Senate Preparedness Subcommittee is investigating reports that the F-111A is being used in Vietnam without any defensive armament.

Several top military authorities have vigorously complained to Senator John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Permanent Investigating Subcommittee, that the controversial Air Force bomber has had all its guns taken off it.

According to the military complaints, the 20-millimeter "gating" guns were removed from the F-111A after one of the guns became overheated and "blew up" causing the plane to crash.

McClellan, who has been the chief critic of the F-111 program, has ordered a full-scale investigation of these and other charges involving the combat readiness of the controversial fighter-bomber.

In addition to probing why the armament was removed from the aircraft, McClellan's investigation will cover why the fighter-bomber was ordered into combat at this time.

Its use in Vietnam, which has already resulted in the loss of two F-111's, came after several of these aircraft crashed during test flights in the U.S.

In registering their complaints with McClellan, several of the military authorities warned that the F-111's without defense armament would be sitting ducks for Hanoi's Soviet-built Migs.

McClellan already has been told that if the North Vietnamese were able to recover either of the two downed F-111A's intact, the Communists would have obtained "a windfall of more than a billion dollars in research and development."

The estimate came from Air Force officials connected with the controversial fighter-bomber project with access to all details of the electronic counter-measures aboard the new aircraft.

For instance, one of the half-dozen highly classified "black boxes" carried aboard the aircraft cost more than $100 million to develop. It regulates the flight of the F-111A over rough terrain so that there can be no pilot error.

While McClellan has sent his investigators to Thailand and Vietnam to investigate the F-111 crashes in that part of the world, the FBI has opened up a two-pronged investigation in the U.S.

The government men were assigned by President Johnson to find out who leaked the stories that the F-111A had been ordered into combat in Vietnam and whether any of the crashes in the U.S. were caused by sabotage.

Meanwhile, top defense department authorities have been told by the White House to put a tight lid on all information covering details of how the two F-111A's were lost in combat operations in Southeast Asia.

President answers question fully

WASHINGTON — It was John F. Kennedy who asked the question which Lyndon B. Johnson has now answered as it has never been answered before.

On the day he became President, Kennedy enjoined us to: "Ask not what your country can do for you — ask what you can do for your country."

It is a stirring, galvanic example Mr. Johnson has given by putting national unity ahead of his ambition to be vindicated at the polls and by removing partisan liabilities from his pursuit of an honorable peace in Vietnam.

But it is also a demanding example. What will be the answer of other political leaders, Democratic and Republican? What will they "do for their country," how will they match the President's lead to restore "the unity of our people" at a time when peace in Vietnam may be within reach?

LBJ has done his part — to the brim and overflowing.

He has unilaterally de-escalated the war by stopping the bombardment north of the DMZ and has thus said to his Vietnam critics: We'll try it your way.

Courageous act

He has removed himself as the focus and magnet of divisive factions and forces in the nation in an act of political selflessness unexcelled in American political history.

But Mr. Johnson's bold and cleansing act needs more than admiring endorsements and polite appreciation.

I do not suggest that anyone else get out of the Presidential race; we've had enough of that, too much, perhaps. The question now is whether Senators McCarthy and Kennedy, Vice President Humphrey, Richard Nixon, and possibly newcomers will conduct their political campaigns in a manner to help unify the nation so that Johnson's risky initiative to get Hanoi to talk peace will have the best chance of success.

As long as the American people comprise a "house divided against itself" over the conduct of the war and the search for peace in Vietnam, Hanoi has had every reason to believe that the war was going to be won for them in the United States. It has had good reason to reject negotiation as long as the American people showed mounting evidence of division.

But now that Mr. Johnson has moved to de-escalate the war, the one most needed ingredient to strengthen the President's peace initiative is visible evidence by his critics — which Hanoi cannot mistake — that the President is speaking for a united and steadfast people.

Obviously this does not mean that the past critics of President Johnson — McCarthy, Kennedy, Nixon, Romney, Fulbright, Morse, or anyone else — should pretend that they are admirers of the President.

But if they are half as selfless as Johnson has proved to be, they will now help re-unify the nation so that North Vietnam will know beyond any doubt that the American peace initiative is an act of strength, not of weakness, and that to reject it will be imprudent in the extreme.

Initial response

The first response from Kennedy, McCarthy, and others is most encouraging. They appreciate the magnanimity and momentousness of Johnson's action and they undoubtedly sense that the great majority of Americans does not want anyone's political ambitions to mar it.

Hanoi may still reject it. Hanoi may still believe that conquest of South Vietnam on the battlefield is attainable and that it can continue to rely on disunity within the U.S. so that it won't have to negotiate.

We are now at the point where the political opponents of the President can contribute immeasurably to the success of his peace initiative. And the President is asking and will be getting no political advantage for himself. That is the vital asset of having removed himself from Presidential politics. He has put the cause of peace above the cause of Lyndon Johnson.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Cravat

European nations once hired trained fighting men from other countries to serve in their armies. In the early part of the 17th century some Croats—natives of Croatia, a region in southeast Europe—served in the French army.

The Croatian soldiers wore large, linen neckcloths. French soldiers and civilians admired the neckcloths so much that their use was adopted over much of France.

The French name for a Croat was "Cravate," from the Old Slavic name "Khrvat." Since the Croats introduced the neckcloth in France, Frenchmen referred to it as a "cravate." The word became "cravat" in English, and is used to denote a necktie.

Letters to the Editor

Peace possibility questioned

Editor, The Record

President Johnson's rejection of the Democratic nomination overshadowed his announcement of a peace initiative in the same speech. Yet those who are concerned about the devastating effects of the War on our nation at home and abroad must examine the real meaning of this latest effort as objectively as possible.

The halt in the bombardment and bombing of most of North Vietnam is certainly an essential first step in bringing about negotiations. The willingness to abide by the Geneva Accords and to allow the participation of all South Vietnamese in their government is also in line with the thinking of such outstanding experts as U Thant, Anthony Eden, Senator Fulbright, etc.

However, several other questions remain and these may prevent any serious response from Hanoi. The President said that we would send an additional 13,500 troops to Vietnam, raising our strength there to 549,000 servicemen. At the same time he repeated his assumption that "North Vietnam would not take military advantage of our restraint."

Does this mean that we would not negotiate if the North Vietnamese infiltrate additional troops to offset the new forces that we have introduced? Is this realistic?

Perhaps a more serious problem is the present government of South Vietnam. Eventually the South Vietnamese must settle the civil war between their own people. Will the present military government be able to negotiate with the Vietcong for an interim government or for truly fair elections in South Vietnam?

At present South Vietnam's leading labor leader, Vo Van Tai; peace candidate Truong Dinh Dau (who came in second in the elections); leading Buddhist monk Tich Tri Quang; and former economics minister Au Truong Thang are in jail.

If these popular leaders were in President Thieu's cabinet rather than jail, the prospects for meaningful peace negotiations with the Vietcong would be greatly enhanced.

Let us hope that President Johnson will take all necessary steps to encourage realistic confidence in his current peace initiative. Much more can be done without endangering the legitimate interests of either the United States or the people of South Vietnam.

Editorial branded April Fool

Editor, The Record

Your editorial "Students Appeal Questionable" (April 1) serves to confirm the criticism of many young citizens of this country that their elders feel that "age makes might."

My understanding of citizenship is that it is conferred by birth unless an individual is an alien who must acquire his citizenship by application. Yet, you imply that our natural-born citizens, even if they are not of voting age, must be denied active participation in the democratic process which is their heritage.

Obviously, your editorial thinking would more than likely support the equally obnoxious argument that college students are without "experience" because they dwell in ivory towers. When they demonstrate a willingness and initiative to "learn" at the "grass roots" — something which a large percentage of their parents have long since forfeited as a responsible duty — you question motives and intentions, and, tell them to go back to the ivory towers until they reach the magic age of 21.

While young men, who are not yet of voting age, are quite capable of handling weapons of mass destruction, thus protecting the security of your editorial desk, you assert that they are incompetent of handling the only means of constructive action which our constitution, and theirs, affords them.

If you are disturbed by the demonstrations, it is because people of your persuasion have written a judgement, such as your editorial, upon themselves. The young people are just implementing the consequences of your own indictment.

Interestingly enough, it appears that you have proved yourself to be an April Fool.

Cherry Blossoms rule

WASHINGTON — The most important single thing which happens here annually is not the opening of Congress, the beginning of the baseball season or, even, the collection of taxes. It is — and always has been — the Cherry Blossom Festival.

Political campaigns come to a halt, wars are postponed, courts are adjourned, the passage of bills is delayed, the White House stops issuing statements (and the accompanying denials) and most government agencies all but cease to exist.

Meanwhile, the city goes on a blossom orgy. There are Blossom Parades, Blossom Dances, Blossom Drill Teams and Blossom Parties. We eat Blossom Candy, drink Blossom Punch and, so help me, last night someone offered me a Blossom Salad, made with fallen petals.

The daughters of Congressmen are appointed Cherry Blossom Princesses from their respective states and the Bachelor Officers Quarters at Quantico are raided for suitable escorts. (This is a week of very tough duty for these men, but they are Marines and they will see it through.)

Marital law powers

Officials of the Cherry Blossom Festival Committee have temporary powers of martial law. No interference with the blossoms and related events will be tolerated. Listen to me, this is how important the blossoms are:

Earlier this year, in a moment of forgetfulness, Dr. Martin Luther King announced that his mass camp-in here would coincide with the Blossom Festival. Well, believe it or not, he was quickly talked out of that idea and he rescheduled his demonstration for April 22!

Head injuries

Parents are often confused about how to handle a child who has had a head injury. When they are bombarded with questions like "Was he unconscious?" "How long?" "Did he bleed from the ears?" "Did he seem stuporous?" and "Has he been alert?" their answers be come as confusing as the rapid questions.

Doctors, too, wonder whether a child with a head injury should be placed in the hospital or watched at home.

A very interesting study of almost 1,500 victims of accidents was conducted in a Swedish Hospital by Dr. A. Engberg and Dr. S. Nordlund. They came to the conclusion that a child could be safely watched and treated at home if, after six hours, there were no neurological signs and if his behavior was normal. Drs. Engberg and Nordlund suggest that parents report to their doctors every two or three hours for the first two days after an injury. Parents are taught to look for any change in personality, severe headaches, vomiting or unusual sleepiness.

A head injury must never be considered as another experience of childhood. It is much wiser and safer to think of the possibility of a concussion of the brain even with relatively light injury.

When there is the slightest suggestion of trouble parents are advised to bring the child directly to the hospital where brain wave testing and spinal taps and other tests can be safely performed.

The six hour period of observation seems to be a safe one and has been responsible for the avoidance of complications.

The physicians involved in this study emphasize the fact that there is no relationship between a "minor injury" and the damage it might do to the brain. The keynote for safety, they suggest, is observation during the critical six hour period.

A most serious disease of the liver is called yellow atrophy. Chronic alcoholism, severe malnutrition and poisoning with heavy metals cause this degeneration of the liver which threatens the lives of those afflicted with it. Fortunately, the condition occurs rarely. The use of antibiotics and cortisone has been the only life-saving possibility.

A most ingenious and courageous attempt to save the lives of patients with severe toxic inflammation of the liver was tried by Dr. William R. Ghent at the Dieu Hospital in Kingston, Ontario. They actually "borrowed" the liver of another person and thus cleared the toxic poisons from the body of the patient with yellow atrophy of the liver.

In a complex way the umbilical veins (at the belly button) were reopened in the patient and the donor and a complete circuit was made through a pump which sent the impure blood of the patient through the healthy liver of the volunteer. This almost unbelievable person-to-person hookup took about 14 hours and dramatically saved the life of the patient.

Reserves, National Guard

Call-up of troops postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Final decisions on call-up of thousands of Reservists and National Guardsmen have been delayed because of preparations — now canceled — for President Johnson's Honolulu conference on Vietnam.

Meanwhile, there is speculation that the new call-up — announced by Johnson last Sunday — might be deferred indefinitely or even dropped, to avoid jarring the fragile peace atmosphere.

Defense officials said last Monday that the first increments of a Reserve-Guard muster might come within three days.

They spoke in terms of initial mobilization of up to about 16,000 to provide needed support troops in Vietnam and to replace a regular Marine unit which was sent there in an emergency step in the wake of the enemy Tet offensive.

These same officials indicated a later call-up, over a period of months, of up to 50,000 Reservists and Guardsmen. These would be mainly Army, to fill out the central core of U.S.-based troops depleted by the Vietnam war.

The three days were up Thursday, with no sign of any action on the call-up. Army staff officers had expected a go-ahead on Wednesday.

But defense authorities, questioned about the apparent delay, said Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford had not yet made final decisions on specific numbers and units to be mustered.

These authorities emphasized that figures used earlier in the week were round numbers, subject to change as plans were finally set.

The authorities said Clifford's final decisions had been delayed by preparations for the Honolulu conference, which they indicated had pushed other matters aside for the time being.

The White House announced

Friday that Johnson had called off the Hawaii trip, and said the meeting would be rescheduled later.

This change in plans followed the assassination Thursday night of Dr. Martin Luther King. Pentagon officials said the Army is taking "certain precautionary actions" to be ready for any serious disorders that may develop and Clifford presumably would be overseeing these preparations.

There are cross-currents of viewpoint within the Defense Department on what course to take on the call-up in view of the apparent willingness of North Vietnam to move toward preliminary peace talks.

One point of view holds that the call-up should be deferred indefinitely, so as to encourage the North Vietnamese to go to the conference table.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

"Up to each life some rain must fall, some days be dark and dreary" as the old poem goes, but it didn't need to happen at the same time my children took off for New York on the last stage of their journey back to Jamaica, and heaven knows we'll meet again.

They had a wonderful vacation, however, with good weather following them for their visit in Devon where the daffodils were blooming and the lily pads were out; in Philadelphia where they visited, of all places, William Penn on Top of City Hall, and very dirty he is, they reported.

It was beautiful in Washington where they were dedicating the cherry blossoms. When they called to say they'd be home about 4 o'clock Wednesday night, I cautiously thought "midnight." So they arrived at 6 p.m. while I was just finishing the last of some particularly unappetizing leftovers.

You can't win! Of course I'll admit that the empty house would seem less depressing if I threw out the pussy willows which are now in the melting stage, emptied the dish drainer, and tackled the mountain of linen left from so much changing of beds and so many showers.

But if I'm going to be depressed I go the whole way: spits on my stockings, hair all scrubby from getting wet, rain-streaked windows, dead flowers, dead ashes in the fireplace, the works. Might as well enjoy my misery — and catch up on my sleep.

For April showers

Make an umbrella cake

LINDA PIPHER
Pocono Record Home Economist

STROUDSBURG — It seems as if we had enough rain in March to scare away April showers, but we'll probably have our share this month, too. April means that June is just around the corner and maybe some of you are planning bridal showers for your friends.

The cake in the photo can be made for a bridal shower or for any April dessert for both including Easter dinner. Remember, too, that it can be used for a table centerpiece.

Made simply with a package of cake mix or with your own favorite cake recipe or the one I'll give you today, the cake is decorated with a frosting made from a package of whipped topping mix. The only trick about it is in the cutting of the cake to make the correct umbrella shape.

For this, mark the measured points on the cake with picks and place all pieces on the platter or tray before you begin frosting. If you haven't a large enough tray or platter, use a piece of heavy cardboard covered with aluminum foil. Use a generous amount of frosting, rounding the corners to obtain the desired contours. The following instructions are for one umbrella cake; you can, of course, repeat the process using the other layer to have two cakes.

April Umbrella Cake
1 round 8 inch cake layer
Butter Frosting
Red food coloring
Candy wafers in pastel colors
1 and one-third cups (about) flaked coconut
Miniature marshmallows
Prepare 8 inch layers from a package of cake mix or use a favorite recipe. Cool cake completely. (Reserve second layer for another cake, can be frozen.)

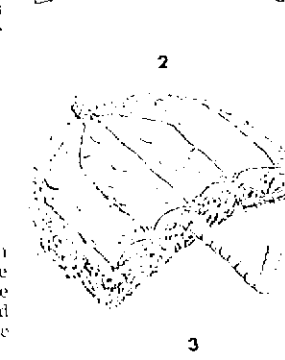

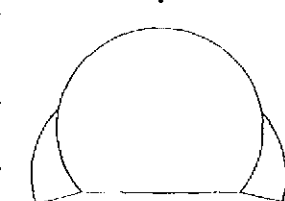

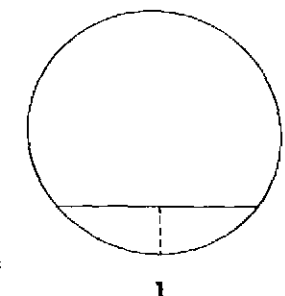

To make umbrella, measure in 1 1/2 inches from outside edge of cake layer towards center. With a sharp knife cut straight across cake from this point to each outside edge. Then cut the small cut-off section in half. See illustrations.

Place the large cake piece on a serving plate or tray and arrange the two small cake sections at either side to form the umbrella. Do this by putting the long straight edges of the small pieces against the lower curved sides of the cake.

Prepare butter frosting (see recipe below). Reserve half for second cake. Tint 1/2 cup of the frosting pink with red food coloring and set aside. Cover top and sides of umbrella cake with frosting, swirling generously over the joined cake edges. Then using the pink frosting in a cake decorator tube or a paper cup, pipe on lines of frosting to resemble ribs of an umbrella. Make a knob of pink frosting at top for point of umbrella. Place pastel-colored candy wafers on the frosting to make a polka dot design. Pat coconut generously on sides of cake and sprinkle remaining coconut over top. String miniature marshmallows on a long toothpick or stick for umbrella handle and stick into cake.

Butter Frosting
One-third cup cold milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 envelope whipped topping mix
1 pound confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons milk
3 tablespoons soft butter
Combine one-third cup milk,

Pennsylvania's legislators mourn death of Rev. King

At Stroudsburg Post Office

Record's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., called on Congress Friday to build for the slain Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. "a lasting monument of law" and urged passage of civil rights legislation.

"Justice and quality of opportunity were always his goals," Clark said in a statement. "We in the Congress must now demonstrate our dedication to those same goals not only out of a sense of compassion for his loss, but because honor and duty require it."

National tragedy
Clark said "let us now - before we are visited by national tragedy yet again pass the federal gun control bill."

Sen. Hugh Scott, D-Pa., said "we should declare a week of national mourning in the memory of this great apostle of non-violence who was eloquent in his protest against man's inhumanity to man."

Sen. Clark also called King a "victim of man's persistent inhumanity to man" and said with his death "we've lost the sanest and most persuasive voice for moderation and non-violence this nation has ever had."

Pennsylvania's only Negro Congressman, Rep. Robert N.C. Nix, and a personal friend of King, said "I think it's the most tragic thing to happen in a decade. Nix will attend King's funeral and said that he hoped the slaying will more definitely center the minds of the American people on the rights entitled to all in this country."

Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Bethlehem, urged all white Americans to "make a greater effort than we have to erase bigotry and hatred from our own hearts and lives. Our nation was not founded on the principle of individual freedom for a few, but on a principle of freedom for all."

Erase bigotry

Rooney added "because of Dr. King, American Negroes have gained broader opportunities, have achieved greater dignity and have won new recognition of their equal rights as Americans."

Rep. Joseph McDade, R-Scranton, said the death of King "is not only a personal loss to his wife and children, it is a significant loss to our whole nation."

Flags flew at half-mast throughout Pennsylvania Friday, including many localities in Monroe County, in honor of King.

Buck Hill Falls offers tribute to Gillam during testimonial

BUCK HILL FALLS — Clifford R. Gillam, Buck Hill, was honored by officers, board of directors, and members of the Lot and Cottage Owners Assn. of Buck Hill during a testimonial at The Inn Friday night.

Gillam, who resigned as chairman of the board at Buck Hill, and was a former director of the company, was cited for "his faithful service over a period of more than 40 years to the Buck Hill Community."

Gillam came to the Buck Hill Falls Co. on Dec. 1, 1927, and has been a leading Buck Hill figure and a Monroe County Civic leader for the past 40 years.

A silver platter was presented to Gillam during the testimonial by Frederick R. Starr, president of the Lot and Cottage Owners Assn.

Starr said, "His value has been measured over the past 40 years with his help in building the Buck Hill Community."

James F. Candelet, newly elected president of the American Lawn Bowls Assn., presented Gillam with a camera and remarked that the gift was for "his keen interest in Lawn-bowling, not only here at Buck Hill, but across the United States."

Gillam, in speaking to nearly 200 persons at the affair, called the occasion "One of the finest moments" in his life.

He noted the rise of Buck Hill for the past 40 years, and praised the cooperation he received from the board of directors and the Lot and Cottage Owners Assn.

Easter Seals small — area miracles large

By PETE GRADY

STROUDSBURG — Lilies, the symbol of Easter, grace not only church altars during Easter Week; they also serve as the emblem of the Easter Seal Campaign.

The Monroe County Crippled Children and Adults Society's 1968 Easter Seal campaign is $1,100 short of its 1968 quota of $7,500, according to Mrs. C. B. Rosenkrans, former Easter Seal chairman, and resident of Delaware Water Gap.

"So far we've raised only $6,400," Mrs. Rosenkrans said, "and the drive ends Easter Sunday, April 14."

Easter Seal contributions spur research in the following diseases: arthritis, hearing and speech defects, cerebral palsy, multiple sclerosis, Parkinson disease, epilepsy, muscular and orthopedic malformations and strokes.

Easter Seals are more than just stamps and glue. Locally, they've outfitted the Physical Therapy Department of the General Hospital of Monroe County, purchased machinery for the Burnley Workshop and set up a Retarded Children's Program in Monroe County.

Attend camp

In the summer, for two or three precious weeks, area handicapped children laugh at their crutches and braces as they compete in fun and games at Camp Daddy Allen, Hickory Run State Park, thanks to Easter Seals.

Two area youths have benefited from the Easter Seal campaigns.

Teddy Gurka was 13 in 1961 when he dove into Stokes Mill Pond and seriously injured his spine. Cynthia Shook, a sophomore at Stroud Union High, in 1962 dove into the same pond and broke her neck.

Officers were elected as follows: Ronald Tomasek, president; Charles James, first vice president; Eugene Mackes, second vice president; Donald Mader, treasurer; Betty Place, recording secretary; Nancy Miller, corresponding secretary.

Also attending were Frank Smith, Prothonotary; Arlington "Bud" Martin, county commissioner, and Robert Reedmiller, president of Middle Smithfield Democratic Club.

Dead is Mrs. Effie Sabey, a passenger in her husband's car.

According to Plainfield Twp. Police Chief, Donald R. Rohn, Dr. Peter K. Sabey, 68, of Rochester, N.Y., was traveling south on Rt. 115 when his car crossed the highway and crashed into a truck driven by James C. Green, 52, of Bangor, R.D. 3.

Police estimate damages at $3,500 to the Sabey car and $750 to the Green truck. Green was not injured.

State Treasurer candidate calls for victory by GOP

STROUDSBURG — "The New Hampshire Primary told it and the Wisconsin Primary proved it that this country needs new direction and leadership," more than 50 Monroe County Republicans were told at a meet-the-candidates rally Friday night.

Frank J. Pasquerilla of Johnstown, Republican candidate for State Treasurer, told the gathering in the Penn-Stroud Hotel that "it's time we know what's going on in Vietnam and even in Washington."

Pasquerilla's off-the-cuff remarks took on the tones of an incredible credibility gap in the Johnson Administration.

President Johnson pledged to de-escalate the war when he addressed the nation last Sunday and in the same speech called for a troop call-up in Vietnam, Pasquerilla said, adding, "I still don't quite understand it."

Pasquerilla added that former Secretary of Defense Robert MacNamara said in a television interview the other day that the United States can never win a military victory in Vietnam.

Time for look

"It's time to take a good look at the domestic policy," Pasquerilla said, and it's time to elect a Republican President.

Pasquerilla originally intended to speak only on the Constitutional Convention proposals, but later admitted to newsmen that he was moved to comment on national affairs when a moment of silence was requested at the meeting in honor of the slain Dr. Martin Luther King.

Pasquerilla rushed through his speech on outlining the Constitutional Convention proposals on the April 23 Primary ballot. A plane was awaiting him at Mount Pocono Airport for another speaking engagement in Harrisburg.

Chairman of the Convention's local government committee, Pasquerilla said "The 1968 Primary, without a doubt, is the most important in Pennsylvania in 100 years."

He said the greatest threat to the defeat of the proposals is misunderstanding on the part of the voters. He urged all civic, fraternal and political organizations as well as individuals to campaign for the adoption of the five constitutional questions on the ballot.

He said the State Republican Committee will conduct a panel tomorrow to explain the constitutional questions.

The Monroe Council of Republican Women sponsored Friday night's rally.

Other speakers included attorney Edwin Krawitz, Henry Finn and J. Russell Eschback, all Republican candidates for State Representative in the 139th District.

Dr. Evan C. Reese, Monroe County GOP chairman, and Mrs. Nolan Benner, endorsed candidates as delegates to the national convention, also attended.

Communion to be served

GILBERT — Holy Communion will be administered in Salem United Church of Christ here on Palm Sunday at 10:30 a.m. Rev. Wilmer C. Mantz will deliver a message, "Darkness at Noon."

An Easter Dawn Service will be conducted Easter Sunday at 6 a.m. with Rev. Mantz and a message "The Risen Lord." There will be special vocal and instrumental music. The service will be followed by an Easter breakfast.

MRS. C. B. ROSENKRANS—Checks records

Both have been helped through the years by treatment made possible through the Easter Seal funds. Cynthia is completely recovered today. Teddy attends Hostria University, Hempstead, Long Island, and hopes to be a Certified Public Accountant.

He drives his own car, lives alone in an apartment and will start working part time in the near future for "Abilities Inc.," a firm that hires handicapped workers.

Mrs. Rosenkrans knows only too well the limitations of the handicapped, the ceaseless daily reminders that "you can't do this and you can't do that" in the narrow constricted world of the physically and mentally disadvantaged.

On a rainy Sunday afternoon in Binghamton, N.Y., in 1961 Mrs. Rosenkrans sat behind the wheel of her car and waited for the light to change.

One glance in the rearview mirror and she knew she was in an utterly helpless situation. A car was bearing down on her. She didn't have time to get out of the way. The light began to change but it was too late.

She thought she was just shaken up, her neck snapping forward and back, a slight pain, nothing more. What did the doctors call it? Whiplash.

But that night she couldn't move. She'd ruptured two vertebrae in the cervical region of her spine.

Mrs. Rosenkrans has learned to live with her infirmity. Just like she has for many years.

Mothers honor S-burg matmen

BUSKIRK — The annual banquet for the Stroudsburg High Wrestling team Friday night turned into a serious affair when one of the team's wrestlers was given a posthumous award.

Ernest Neyhart, who died Thursday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident last Saturday, was given a pin recognizing him as one of the senior members of the varsity team which won the Lehigh Valley League championship.

Mrs. Florence Armato, who served as toastmaster for the Wrestling Mothers, an organization which annually honors the Stroudsburg wrestling team, made several references to the fact that this year's banquet was marred by Neyhart's untimely death.

In a lighter vein, Mrs. Toni Hoffman, was recognized as the most excited mother spectator this past season when she was awarded a bucket full of banknotes, an item she destroyed each match.

Trophies were presented to Mike Stolinski, outstanding wrestler; Stolinski and Dale Keenhold, most pins; Kevin Yost, most improved and Dave Chanacca, outstanding boy on the 7th and 8th grade team.

Team co-captains Stolinski and Gary Van Buskirk presented a Paul Revere silver bowl to head coach Chet Dalgewicz and a bowl to assistant coach Bill Schiebel.

The Mothers Club presented a school blazer to Dalgewicz and senior pins to Keenhold, Stolinski, VanBuskirk, Nick Scerbo, Bill Zellers, Terry Bush, Paul Lesoine, Dave Lesoine and Bob Lee.

Dalgewicz in a brief talk told the boys that it's going to take a lot of determination and work on their part next year to repeat as league champions.

Music following the dinner was provided by a band comprised of wrestlers VanBuskirk, Dan Moyer and Ed Hudak and Bob White.

Bacterial optimism

SALISBURY, N. C. — One of the major hazards of spring training is not poison ivy, sunstroke, crocodile bites, or fruit flies, it is an affliction called "bacterial optimism."

Its principal carriers are baseball managers who are the Typhoid Marys of the Grapefruit, Citrus, and Cactus circuits. Highly contagious, only a brief exposure is needed to come down with a raging fever in which the victim suddenly has hallucinations of Babe Ruth, Herb Pennock, Ty Cobb and a decade of National League pennants.

Eyesight is affected, judgment even more so. Knock-kneed shoe clerks on the Spokane roster suddenly look like All-Star shortstops. Myopic centerfielders bring visions of Tris Speaker. It produces a speech impediment in which the individual can only utter words like "Great!" "Fantastic!" "Exciting!" and a thing called "reverse viewpoint." If the team is sure to lose two out of every three games it plays, the manager says "I can promise you this bunch will win one out of every three."

The Delirium vs. the Truth

A few of the common verbal symptoms of this disease follow. On the left is the delirium, on the right, the sad truth:

"This kid reminds me of a young Koufax." — He's Jewish and has black hair. There the resemblance ends. His fast ball reminds me of a young soap bubble.

"He's got a major league glove." — It's the hand he puts into it that has shortcomings.

"One of the best-looking young arms I've seen in camp." — It has a tattoo of the American flag, a serpent, and "I love Doris" on it, plus a heart with "Mom" written on it. They should tattoo "E-S" on it, too.

"He's got a quick bat." — Strikes out faster than anybody on the team.

"He can go get 'em in the outfield." — He has to. Everything goes through him.

"He's a threat to steal on you." — Yeah. Button your wallet, and lock your locker. The only thing he has never stolen in his life is second base. If he did, he'd take it home with him out of force of habit.

"For a rookie, he's got more poise than some of our 20-year-veterans." — Why not? Management has already given him a bonus in excess of what our veterans have earned in 20 years. Too bad he can't buy a base hit. God knows he could afford it.

May hit .350

"This kid'll hit .300." — Why shouldn't he? He already weighs 280. Watching him eat, you'd have to say .350 is not impossible.

"He has good hands." — Seven royal flushes, five four-of-a-kinds, and 66 straights in the training camp poker games. If he only gets three-of-a-kind, he throws the hand in. Too bad he'll have to be wasting luck like that in the Three-Eye League card games when the season starts.

"He gets good wood on the ball." — Carolina ash honed by the best craftsmen in the world. Unfortunately, he doesn't get enough of it on the ball. He has had more pops than a Hollywood child actress.

"He waits on the pitch better than anyone I ever saw." — He's still waiting for that curve ball they threw him in the last World Series game, the one that was in there for strike three. He has to wait because the only way he can get on base is via pitches. He couldn't hit me if I ran through home plate.

There is only one cure for the disease: Opening Day. Or Opening Week in advanced cases.

Dolphins ink Larry Csonka

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins signed record-smashing Syracuse fullback Larry Csonka Thursday and predicted that his entry into the line-up would make the team "one of the most exciting in the American Football League."

After dangling a reported three-year, $109,000 offer from the Canadian Football League in front of the Dolphin brass, the 6-foot-3, 240-pound Csonka signed shortly after midnight.

Managing partner Joe Robbie declined to discuss any details of the contract, including money or duration, but he said its terms "recognize Csonka as one of the top halfplayers in America."

Birds' luck to change; picked 1st

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're looking for sure things in the American League this season, how about the New York Yankees?

Figure them to finish closer to the bottom than the top of the heap again. But don't wager the rent money on it. And don't count on Boston's defending champions winding up much higher than the struggling New Yorkers.

Baseball is a game of inches. And hunches. So chalk up one shaky vote for the Baltimore Orioles to finish on top after a wild scramble.

Baltimore was just about everyone's pennant pick last spring after a convincing 1966 Series sweep over Los Angeles. But the Orioles, battered by injuries, ailments and encephalitis, finished in a sixth-place tie with Washington, 15½ games off the Red Sox' pace.

Bad luck still haunts the Orioles. Two of their sore-armed 1967 pitchers, Jim Palmer and Wally Bunker are in the minors. But the guess here is that Baltimore's luck will change in time for a victorious stretch run against Detroit and Chicago.

Minnesota will be in it too, if Jim Kaat's ailing left arm comes around. But the Red Sox, forced to begin their pennant defense without Cy Young Award-winner Jim Lonborg in the pitching rotation, should have trouble cracking the first division.

This is the way the finish looks from here:

1. Baltimore
2. Detroit
3. Chicago
4. Minnesota
5. California
6. Boston
7. Washington
8. New York
9. Cleveland
10. Oakland

Flyers have a problem: no ice to practice on

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—What do you do with an ice hockey team which has lost its offense? Practice, you say.

"We can't practice," said coach Keith Allen of the stone cold Philadelphia Flyers. "We haven't got any ice."

That's right, the ice is gone, and in its place is a basketball floor for Friday night's National Basketball Association eastern final playoff between Philadelphia and Boston.

The Flyers took only 11 shots on goal Thursday night as they lost 4-0 to the St. Louis Blues and blew their home ice advantage in the best of seven Stanley Cup semifinal West Division playoffs in the National Hockey League.

Defenseman Larry Zeidel said the Flyers were overcautious. "We kept standing around waiting for George to do it," said Zeidel. Only George wasn't there as he hasn't been in the West champion's last dozen games.

True, the Flyers had to play 21 of their last 24 games on the road when the Spectrum lost its lid. But who put the lid on the goal net?

Allen is frustrated. He just doesn't know what happened to the team which built a fat lead in the West, then all but blew it in a backsliding final month.

"We showed about as much offense as my kid's team," said the Flyers' coach Friday. "Our defense has been non-existent for the last four or five games."

"We aren't shooting the puck, but then you can't shoot the puck from your own end. That's where most of the game was played. We had a few chances to shoot, but nobody would take it. We seem afraid to shoot."

St. Louis goalie Glenn Hall said the game wasn't as easy for him as it appeared. "I know you think I could have sat in a rocking chair with only 14 shots to stop," said the veteran of 83 Stanley Cup playoff games. "It was easy, physically, but not mentally. After all, all I had to do was miss one and it was all over."

Hall probably will be in goal again Saturday night for the Flyers in the second game of the series on Spectrum ice. Allen isn't sure if he will use Bernie Parent, who did an excellent job with all but one of 33 St.

Louis shots, or his other rookie Doug Favell. Favell is recovered from an infected throat.

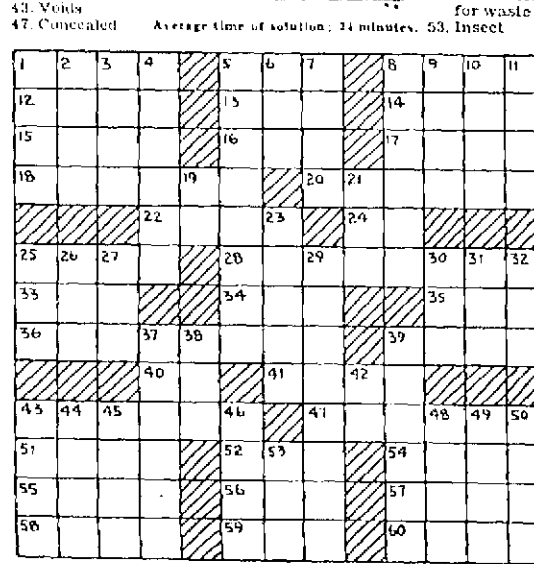

Parent said of the winning goal, "I knew (Joe) Watson had the one guy tied up, so I was watching the puck in the corner. I didn't see (Jim) Roberts skate in behind. When I finally did see him it was too late. His shot went over my shoulder."

Saturday night's game is a must for the Flyers, who had a 7-1-2 record against St. Louis during the regular season. They have to even the series and then win at least one next week in the pair of games in St. Louis if they hope to stay in the running.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — It's the singer Ray Charles' first son after four straight daughters; in Palm Beach.

Stop-press scandal at the Ringling Brothers Circus: segregation — all the elephants are females they pachyderms go currying — during their mating season but the girls couldn't care less. Illinois Gov. Charles Percy will face front page news and not the Nixon vice-presidency.

England's latest "harsh restrictions" against Rhodesia: Teddy Bears joined the banned list of exports. Reuben Cosmetics millionaire Charles Reuben have been roughing it at the Waldorf Towers for two years while their triplets penthouse (formerly Helena Rubinstein's) has been getting refurbished to the tune of more than a million.

Charles and Lynn Revson won't take their usual season of Europe this summer — they bought Daniel P. Ludwig's huge and lavish yacht for a couple million even though all the stuff on it is either United States provisions loaded here or flown over from the U.S.

Julius Rose's attempts to keep his wives' jewelry in his own name was given the Sunny Chick-treatment by headlines; but lots of the old Guard keep the gowns in poppies' names: a Whitney, a Gardner and a Seals.

The New Guard gets rich: Sean Connery's "Slalaki" film fee for making love to Brigitte Bardot is $1,200,000 against 30 per cent of the take; BB's is $400,000 against 12.5 per cent.

Johnny Carson's "Tonight" fun has been diminished considerably since his early midnighters because he has taken on that so very subtly subliminal smugness that tells viewers he knows he's the boss.

Lord Snowden was the Palm Restaurant's unpaid press agent; recommended it highly to Karim Aga Khan who brought along his sideburns but didn't take home any heartburn. William Shatner told the "Personality" television show he would "refuse a part in a movie that had anything to do with sex, drugs, violence, mayhem." And that's why he isn't working in movies today.

British-born ex-queen Ena of Spain (absent from Spain 37 years) gets $120,000 a year from the Spanish government same pay Franco draws. Writers Leach and Dimmen peddled a very funny commercial to El-Al Israel Airlines — about a topless waitress, on radio, not TV. Jamaica's United Nations Ambassador Keith Johnson's heavy breathing after he leaves the U.N. Building, is aimed at lovely Joan Murray of the CBS-TV bulletin shooters.

Backers are considering her own club for Judy Garland (she wants it to be on Park or Madison Ave.) with one major problem to be worked out: French food costs money and so do French food cookbooks; the Vesin Cookbook will peddle at $9.95.

Mayor Lindsay's silk-stocking image won't let go; he'll address the 1968 June graduating class at Bryn Mawr. Newsweek says Sinatra won't back Bobby; probably a big lead off Bobby's mind.

Keith Andes and Caroline May of the Chicago "Man of La Mancha" troupe had some noisy exchanges so Miss May was shifted to the New York company; where beautiful Pat Marand was offered the Chicago role at a nice raise but chose four weeks severance from the Broadway show and flew to join hubby Frank Farrell in Montego Bay.

Looks like the royal thing between Iron Queen Frederika of Greece's last eligible daughter Princess Irene and Prince Henry of Hesse; gave her jewelry awfully. The long, successful stage and film partnership of English writer John Osborne (Young Angry Man, Luther, etc.) and director Tony Richardson is finished. Robert Stoltz, 35-year-old Viennese composer will conduct six Israeli Philharmonic concerts this month alone.

One year ago we quoted an unnamed United States Senator who stated flatly Lyndon B. Johnson would not run for reelection; it was Sen. Vance Hartke, we now may note. U.S. edition of the Beatles' official biography will leave out

K of C Easter egg hunt open to all

STROUDSBURG — The Father John T. Butler Council 4081, Knights of Columbus, Easter Egg Committee, will meet today at the K of C Home at 8:30 p.m.

The committee will color Easter eggs for the Easter Egg Hunt to be held Palm Sunday, April 7, at 2:30 p.m. on the local K of C grounds.

All area children are invited to participate. The age group will be up to nine years old.

The Committee stressed that the egg hunt will be for "all children of the community." Through a misunderstanding some parents did not bring their children last year because they thought the egg hunt was limited to the K of C families.

The Committee reminds all K of C members to bring their egg donations and prizes to the K of C Home Saturday at 8:30 p.m.

County's fuels tax approved

Record Harrisburg Bureau HARRISBURG — State Auditor General Grace M. Sloan said Friday her department has approved an audit of the liquid fuels tax fund administered by the Commissioners of Monroe County.

The county audit shows that during the calendar year 1967, $64,444.58 was received from the Liquid Fuels Tax Fund in the State Treasury in June and $68,877.88 in December. In addition interest from Series "14" Bonds and return of over bid on purchase of United States Treasury Bills amounted to $1591.69, for total receipts of $124,914.15 during 1967, which coupled with a Jan. 1, 1967 balance of $84,670.78 gave the county fund a total of $209,584.93.

Commissioners of Monroe County spent $158,880.70 from the Liquid Fuels Tax Fund Account during 1967, breaking down into $6835.20 for county-owned roads and bridges (construction repairs and property damage) and $152,045.50 in grants to political subdivisions within the county, thus ending 1967 with a balance of $50,704.23.

Ann Landers
Dear Ann, help please

Dear Ann Landers: I am a married woman with an infant son. My husband (age 30) has a habit that turns my stomach. Every time he sees his father (which is about once a week) they kiss each other hello.

Don't you feel a handshake or a slap on the back makes more sense? To be kissing one's father at age 30 seems very peculiar to me.

My husband knows I am writing this letter, in fact he will read it before it goes into the envelope. We both want your opinion.

NAUSEATED NANCY

Dear Nauseated: Kissing parents is strictly a matter of family training. I see nothing peculiar about a grown man greeting his father in this manner. Instead of being nauseated, Nancy, be thankful that your husband and his dad enjoy a warm relationship—it will help your husband have a better relationship with his own son. Today the generation gap in a good many families makes the Grand Canyon look like a small ditch.

Dear Ann Landers: Last week my boyfriend put a cigar band around my finger and said, "We're engaged." It seemed romantic at the time but now I fear that romantic gesture may be a symbol of what our life together will be—never enough money for the real thing. Always substitutes.

Rickey is warm-hearted, attractive, fun to be with, but moody. He's a loner and a drifter. He drinks more than he should and I'm sure this is the main reason he can't hold a job. Rickey's parents have been divorced for 10 years. His mother collects alimony and has a good-paying job. He can always get money from her. Frequently she'll stay home from work so she can nurse his hangover and fix him a big breakfast.

Last night when I heard Rick ask his mother for $3 to buy gas I got a little sick to my stomach. He says if I will marry him he won't have to drink, that he'll be able to stay on a job and make a go of things. Yes or no?

JESSICA

Dear Jess: Don't expect a little ceremony to transform an immature, irresponsible kid into a solid, productive adult. Rickey's mother has kept her sonny boy weak and dependent because she needed to be needed. Methinks he sees in you a girl just like the girl who married dear old dad.

Say no unless you want to carry this emotional cripple on your back for the rest of your days.

Find Ways to Transform Home

DECORATIVE PANELING and design ingeniously combine to convert wasted basement space into multi-purpose family room. Hidden, touch-latch built-in hold magazines, music, home office supplies. Folding metal doors lead to laundry. Painted divider with beyond stairs conceals guest room.

MUSIC ROOM FOR YOUNG pianist and her trumpet playing brother becomes part of family room. Doors at left lead to hot water tank and heating-cooling equipment. Plywood paneling was chosen for structural stability, easy maintenance. U.S. Plywood's folding metal doors; Whitcomb's young chestnut paneling.

EASY-CARE FLOORING, with solid squares and accent strips set onto pebbly-textured vinyl asbestos tile, covers the old, scuffed floor. Viewless window, awkward architectural defects are disguised by rosewood-paneled wall that hides radiator, offers extra storage. Modern chandelier replaces old ceiling fixture. for everyday china by painting the insides of cabinets a striking, contrasting color.

DRAMATIC WAY TO REVAMP BOTH EXTERIOR appearance and interior environment of a home might be with glass, as illustrated by before and after pictures here. Owners of a 35-year-old home (below) near Buffalo, N.Y., felt that the exterior seemed drab, the interior crowded and confining.

DOING AWAY WITH SMALL, PEEPHOLE-LIKE windows, and replacing them with large glass areas, was one step taken. Sliding doors of Thermopane insulating glass created a contemporary appearance (above) and made the indoors seem larger, more appealing.

For the bathroom, choose cheery, flattering colors. Walls in delicate pastels can be accented by towels and accessories in brighter hues. Plan the painting with future relaxation in mind.

Paint Colors Spark Brighter Home Life

Color brightens the family environment, adds a touch of splendor to the home, lifts the spirits of the homemaker as she goes about her daily routine. How to put more color into living? Create a cheerful background with paint.

Light colors reflect more light, make things seem larger but lighter in weight.

They're upbeat, cheery.

Dark colors absorb light, make things look smaller.

Bright colors make areas seem larger than they are. They attract the eye, and can be used to draw attention from unattractive objects.

Warm colors — reds, oranges, yellows and yellow-greens — are emotionally stimulating, and convey a feeling of warmth.

Cool colors — blues, violets, blue-greens, blue-grays — make things seem cooler. They're relaxing.

To give the bedroom a start-the-day-right look, try painting the walls a favorite color, then accenting with small quantities of brighter hues in draperies and accessories.

In the kitchen, add light by painting countertops and cabinets white or a light color. For interest, use a bright color inside the cabinets. Or, choose a tint of a favorite color for walls, using a complementary deeper shade for cabinets.

Provide a glamorous setting

To brighten a dark hallway, use light colors on walls and woodwork.

Put sunshine in washdays by painting the laundry room a warm, sunny color. Shades of yellow are stimulating, shades of pink are flattering and cheerful.

In the living room, use deep-toned hues to accent light wood furniture.

Dining Area Needs Light

A common mistake in selecting a fixture for a dining room is to shop for the most decoratively correct model, without regard for lighting requirements. A chandelier may key a romantic mood and help fine silver and dinnerware sparkle like jewels—but there are limitations.

The low level of illumination is unflattering to the appearance of the hostess and her guests. It's hard to see food well, and this annoys some people. Setting the table and tidying up are difficult.

To maintain the glamour of the chandelier along with better lighting, install two or more recessed spotlights in the ceiling, suggests the American Home Lighting Institute.

This doesn't interfere with the candlelight effect, but will provide light where it's needed—for table and people.

How to Improve Water Quality, Quantity

To Win Battle Of the Drought

Summer is on its way—and for hundreds of communities, this means another season of "fighting the battle of the drought." There just won't be enough water to go around, and the city fathers will be forced to pass stringent rules on lawn and garden sprinkling, car washing and even washing the family pooch or filling the children's small splash pool.

Because of community water shortages or other good reasons, many families plan to have their own water wells as a supplementary source of supply, tapping plentiful ground water resources.

In fact, from 50,000 to 100,000 families will have supplementary wells, or water systems as they're more properly called, installed this year, according to the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

They're called "water systems" because that's just what they are, systems patterned after the municipal supply. The hand pump, old oaken bucket and moss-covered well were picturesque, but they meant a lot of hard work.

Today's water system consists of a well that may be no more than three or four inches in diameter. The pump is electrically powered and is often a submersible, installed right in the well, which is then sanitized and sealed, so that the pump is neither heard nor seen.

There's a tank for storing the water and controls for turning the pump on and off automatically when water in the tank reaches a certain level. Once installed, an individual water system can be operated for pennies a day. The water is thus almost always cheaper than city water. It often tastes better, too, because it doesn't have to be treated as heavily as city water.

An individual water system should be installed in accordance with the codes which most areas have. A qualified well driller, water systems specialist or plumbing contractor will be familiar with these codes.

For more information, write for booklet, "How Water Wells Can Help You Solve Your Water Problems, Easily and Economically." It's available, for 15¢ in coin, from the Ground Water Resources Institute, 205 W. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60606.

New Equipment Has the Answers

Does water taste bad? Is it hard to use in cleaning, rough on skin and hair? Has its price gone up? Is there enough for lawn sprinkling, or a desired swimming pool?

New equipment makes it easier and more economical to improve home water supply, both in quality and quantity.

To solve problems of quantity, more people are drilling wells and installing modern water systems to augment their regular water supply. Ground water is almost everywhere, and usually plentiful.

As for problems of quality, one of the newest developments is the introduction of membrane purification. Impurities are removed from water by passing it through a thin film that looks like cellophane.

First of such compact water purifiers for home use was introduced last fall by Culligan, and other manufacturers are joining in.

The compact water purifying unit, which can be mounted on or under a wall cabinet, produces clear, delicious water from the most unpalatable supplies. The purifier removes cloudiness, sediment, undesirable dissolved minerals, organic matter including detergents, offensive color and bad taste and odor, such as chlorine.

It even takes salt out of brackish water.

Such units can be purchased or rented. They require no electrical connection, working on water pressure alone. Hardness is still the number one water problem, affecting more than four out of five homes. Other problems are iron, sulphur and acidity. Some water may have all of these problems.

Previously, it was necessary to get a special water treatment unit for each separate problem. New equipment makes it possible to treat such multiple problems with a single unit—both a space saver and a money saver.

A new sensing device has improved the operation of water softeners and reduced operating costs. Just as a thermostat senses heat needs, the water sensor monitors hardness. Because it makes for maximum operating efficiency, it reduces costs and supplies a maximum amount of softened water.

Check These Common Faults

When the home water supply is plentiful, it may still be unsatisfactory for a variety of reasons.

To help the homeowner identify and solve common water problems, here's a checklist.

1. Water leaves a grimy ring around the bathtub, won't lather with soap. Dishes and silver are dull, water-spotted. These are symptoms of hard water. Install a softener.

2. Water rusts stains fixtures. Laundry is also stained.

Have water tested for iron. A water softener will remove some iron, but for excessive amounts a special filter or feeder-filter unit is recommended.

3. Plumbing pipes and fittings are corroded. Fixture enamel is eaten away.

These are symptoms of acid water. Neutralize acid with a neutralizer filter or a feeder.

4. Water flows in a trickle, especially from the hot water faucet.

This almost always means pipes are clogged by mineral deposits. Have a water softener installed. It will gradually reabsorb the deposits.

5. Water smells like rotten eggs. Silver is tarnished by water.

This indicates sulphur is in the water. Install special filter or feeder-filter unit. Either will remove the sulphur.

6. Water tastes bad, may also smell bad. It lacks clarity. Rent or buy a water purifier.

Adding Beauty Plus Protection

Protection and privacy, two basic reasons for building a fence, now are often joined by a third consideration—beauty.

Traditional types of fencing such as steel chain links continue to serve their purpose of enclosing and protecting a property, but they add another dimension when they're planned as a backdrop for roses or other bushes and vines.

Lumber, one of the earliest fence materials, goes contemporary in attractive designs—fencers, wood "bricks," parquet, herringbone, basket-weave and lattice-work patterns.

Man-made materials such as fiberglass-plastic create unusual patterns in combination with wood framing. Panels of fiberglass-plastic provide privacy without cutting off light, thus serving many special needs.

Hardboard panels, used as fencing, can match or contrast with the siding of the home, and can be painted for decorative outdoor living room effects.

Take a Second Look at Nursery

The nursery is probably the least redecorated room in the house. Once it's set up for baby number one, it generally stays "as is" with subsequent arrivals inheriting the hand-me-down decor.

This spring, therefore, when considering what room needs a little refurbishing, take a second look at the nursery. You'd be surprised at how you can spark it up inexpensively and effectively with a little imagination. A fresh coat of paint for the crib, dresser and chair, the non-toxic variety please, can do wonders particularly if you dare to be adventuresome with your colors. Instead of the traditional pallid baby shades, pick a pink with a lot of pizzazz, a bouncy blue, a no-nonsense yellow. Cover a couple of throw pillows for the chair with an inexpensive fabric in a matching or contrasting color.

If walls look bare, add pictures. And you don't have to go out and buy them. You can make them. All you need is heavy cardboard cut into strips and squares of your preferred dimensions, a pound box of baking soda... the same soda you use for baking, cleaning and brushing your teeth. Corn starch, animal cookie cutters, paints, shellac and glue. Here's how to go about it.

First you make a clay by mixing together thoroughly in a saucepan 2 cups baking soda (1 1-pound package), 1 cup corn starch.

Add 1 1/4 cups cold water. Stir until smooth. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Cook a minute longer or until mixture resembles moist mashed potatoes. Transfer to plate, cover with a damp cloth and when cool enough to handle, knead a little. Roll out clay on waxed paper to 1/4-inch thickness and cut out your animal shapes with cookie cutters. Place on wire rack in warm (350 degrees) turned-off oven for a half hour or until clay animals are hard and dry.

How to Turn a Kitchen Into Homemaker's Haven

CABINET FRONT converts to a modern range hood with a slight pull forward, giving ventilation and complementing kitchen built-ins. "Kenmore Hide-A-Hood" at Sears.

TO BRIGHTEN kitchen counters is new vinyl countertopping. The vinyl is easy to cut and fit, provides color, texture. "Evergreen" Countertopping by Goodyear.

JUST THREE HOURS was all it took to change a drab kitchen (left) into a colorful, sparkling scene (above). Vinyl wall panels in random mosaic tile pattern were the choice. Two walls, each eight by 10 feet, use less than 20 boxes of the pattern—in one-foot square panels, eight to a box. Delft squares accent cabinets.

PANELS ARE flexible, can be cut to size with shears. Adhesive backing is ready to apply when protective coating is removed. Panels by Drexel-Wall (in some cities, Lustrat-Tile).

Appliances Automate for Ease

"Kitchen automation" strikes home! If the family is planning to remodel the kitchen, this may be the right time to make needed replacements of major appliances. Even if the present ones are not outworn, they may be outdated, thanks to innumerable new developments that automate cooking and clean-up.

Modern gas or electric ranges offer new features for automatic top-of-range cooking, as well as programmed oven cooking. Recently, the use of oven timers has been simplified, making automatic cooking or cook-and-hold even easier.

Scrubbing, scraping drudgery becomes a thing of the past, with new easy-clean features for both oven and top of range.

Some ovens can be cleaned automatically, by use of a high-heat process—soon to be available for gas as well as electric ranges.

One manufacturer is offering a double-oven electric range which provides for automatic cleaning of both ovens. Other easy-clean oven features are removable liners, or non-stick coatings for pull-out oven parts.

For flexibility, many surface cooking units can be installed in a cabinet, island or peninsula. Ovens can be built into the wall, or full ranges can be slipped into available space between cabinets or in a corner.

Refrigerator-freezers now come in more compact designs, giving more space inside while taking up less floor space. Conveniently, they are frost-free, for no defrosting ever.

Style variety suits every taste, from the upright with freezer and refrigerator side by side to refrigerators with spacious freezers at either top or bottom.

Probably the most-needed appliance in most homes is the automatic dishwasher, since many kitchens still lack this time-and-work saver. To make it easy to add a dishwasher, models come in free-standing, built-in, portable, convertible or dishwasher-sink styles.

The newest dishwasher convenience is adjustable racks. In a new model, upper and lower racks can be moved up or down for loading flexibility, or racks can be removed entirely.

Taking Trudge out of Laundry

NO ROOM FOR a clothes dryer? Look again! This home-maker chose to fit her portable dryer with casters and store it in the closet when it's not in use. It can be hung on a wall or set on a counter just as easily, dries anything a standard-size dryer will dry. By Maytag.

Appliance manufacturers have taken the drudge out of doing the laundry—but it's up to home-makers to get rid of the trudge.

The best way to do that is to get those time-and-work-saving automatic appliances up out of the basement, to save walking. In most homes being built today, some provision is made for installing a washer and dryer on the main floor—usually near the kitchen.

Some imaginative architects actually plan workable laundry areas with storage and counter space, often in the bedroom-bath area where most of the soiled laundry originates.

What about the older home, where it's hard to find space for both a washer and a dryer, in a location that's truly convenient?

One answer to the problem could be a portable clothes dryer that hangs on a wall, sits on or under a counter, or can be rolled into a closet when not in use.

About the size of an end table and weighing only 77 pounds, such a dryer operates when plugged into any adequately wired 115-volt outlet. It requires no special wiring and no installation, and fits readily in small areas where a standard-size dryer won't go.

For roll-away convenience, it can be fitted with casters.

Another space-saver is a free-standing, combination washer-dryer—a solution that the home-maker who needs a new washer, and doesn't have a dryer, might consider.

The washer-dryer requires only 30 inches of space and will fit neatly between two cabinets, permitting establishment of a home laundry almost anywhere—kitchen, hall area, bathroom. Plus feature is that the complete laundering job—washing and drying—can be done from start to finish with a single setting of controls.

Still another way to find space for a laundry develops when kitchen remodeling projects are under way. Expansion plans can provide for a home laundry along one wall of the kitchen.

TIME TO CHECK UP
Regular check-ups help to keep home in top condition.

Versatile Appliances Help To Stretch Living Space

Almost every house has some unused space that can be converted into living and recreation area—space in the attic, a portion of the basement, an attached garage or carport, or a porch.

The house with a basement presents excellent possibilities for conversion into a recreation, hobby or family room, according to the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association.

The basement—traditionally the forbidding region of the heating equipment—need no longer be given over to the housing of bulky furnaces or boilers and bins and storage sheds. Contemporary gas central heating equipment may be as small as a two- or three-drawer filing cabinet and can be installed in a wide variety of places in the home—in a closet, under steps, in a corner of a room or other inconspicuous spot.

There's no need for fuel storage tanks or bins because gas is piped in underground, directly to gas-fired equipment and appliances, notes GAMA.

A patio or porch can often be enclosed to provide an attractive dining area adjacent to the kitchen, and it can be comfortably heated by either the gas central heating system or by a gas-fired room heater.

The new room heaters are easy to install, economical and available in a number of styles, from one designed like a television console to a model that sits in a window.

Extra living space might be acquired by converting an attached garage into one or more bedrooms, or a family or play room. Here, too, the new area may be comfortably heated, either through central or direct heating equipment.

Modern gas appliances for incineration, clothes drying, air conditioning, water heating and cooking can greatly enhance the comfort of the expanded home, says GAMA.

A gas household incinerator, for example, takes care of the problem of garbage and trash disposal and frees the backyard from unsightly garbage cans and sheds. Smokeless and odorless, these appliances can burn virtually anything combustible;

SHOWPLACE BATH CAN BE CARPETED AND CARE-FREE

If the bathroom is the step-child when it comes to decorating in your house, maybe it deserves a second look. After all, surveys indicate that the bath gets more public scrutiny than any other room... and fewer (audible) comments. Which means you should anticipate its needs before the misadventure starts among caty neighbors.

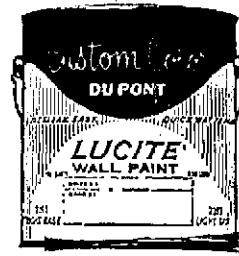

For effective yet easy-to-do decorating, try this:

Bedeck the bath in a medley of mosaics and an array of colorful accessories. The ceramic tiles are available in two inch squares and are easily affixed with mastic. Use soft and fluffy gold carpet of 100% Herculon olefin fiber—one is called Glenlawn by Glenoit—and is perfectly at home in the bathroom, bedroom or backyard.

Since the olefin fiber on both the surface and backing doesn't absorb moisture, there are no worries about mildew—and this washable carpet is a joy to care for. Spots vanish with detergent suds and water. Installation requires just scissors and double-faced tape. For those who love vivid colors, but are bashful about using them in other parts of the house, the bath is a great place to try out new and exciting color schemes. It's fun to decorate the bath with bright towels in contrasting color combinations, rattan baskets and tissue holders in zingy colors.

How They're Making Grass Greener

Now you see it, now you don't. It pops up mysteriously, does a man-size job, disappears out of sight. What is it? An underground sprinkler, and it's making the grass greener on both sides of fences all across the country. Once limited — by cost — to golf courses, institutions and mansions, underground lawn sprinkling systems are, thanks to the advent of plastic pipe, available to fit the budget of virtually every homeowner.

What does "fit the budget" actually mean in terms of cost? Here are figures from one manufacturer:

Materials for covering a lawn of approximately 5,000 square feet with a fully automated system cost about $170. This includes pipe, valves, sprinkler heads and automatic control unit. To cover an area of about 8,000 square feet, cost is approximately $200.

Improved design of systems and efficient, low-cost components even make it possible for the homeowner to install his own system.

The budget-minded homeowner can start with a wave sprinkler and a manual control. Then, at his convenience, he may add a controller that completely automates the system and runs up to four watering stations.

include sprays and bubblers for plantings and shrubbery as well as pop-up or wave sprinklers.

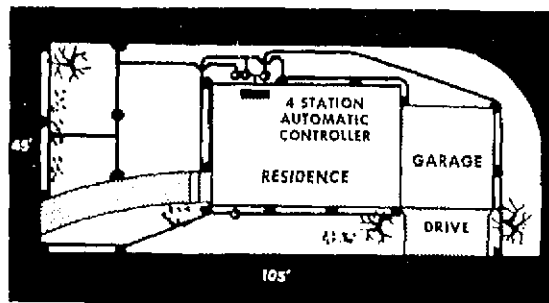

The installation of a basic sprinkler system can be done with only the simplest of tools: screwdriver, pliers, knife and square-tipped spade.

Because the plastic pipe used in hooking up the sprinkling systems is fireproof, it need only be buried a few inches below the sod, out of the way of mowing equipment. Since it is flexible, it will easily bend around obstructions and curves.

It can be quickly buried by simply slitting moistened soil with a square-tipped spade, then forcing the pipe down into the v-shaped groove with the edge of a board.

The installation of the sprinkler head will vary with the type of head used. Usually, it is placed in a hole deep enough to accommodate several inches of coarse gravel for drainage.

If he wishes, the homeowner can install the underground sprinkler heads, and then connect them directly to an existing house faucet, so they can be turned on and off manually. Later, the system can be automated, if desired.

YARD PLAN FOR A COMPLETE SPRINKLER SYSTEM. Illustrated here, uses pop-up sprinklers and provides for sprinkling under low trees and overhanging shrubbery. Plan reflects an actual surveyed yard, 4,725 square feet, with underground sprinkler system at a materials cost of $159.95. It's one of more than 40 plans set forth in the Yard Planning Guide prepared by Toro, marketers of Moist O'Matic sprinkler systems.

Clean water at adequate pressure is important to the satisfactory performance of any automatic sprinkler system. Before beginning installation, the homeowner should check with the water department to determine what water pressure and gallons per minute are available at the home. Check size of meter and line, too.

Five gallons per minute at 55 pounds per square inch will insure good performance and coverage with the least amount of sprinklers and equipment.

To simplify the job of planning a home sprinkling system, a handy "Yard Planning Guide" has been published by Toro. It contains over 40 different plot plans and suggests a system for each. The plans include a list of materials required, as well as the total cost of all parts needed.

"Yard Planning Guide" may be obtained through local Toro dealers or by sending 25 cents to: Yard Planning Guide, Toro Manufacturing Corporation, 8111 Lyndale Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn. 55420.

NOW! A GAS FURNACE USING LESS FUEL, AND QUIETER, TOO

Good news for the homeowner beset by rising costs of firing and by the rising din of noises that afflict the ear.

New solid state controls that will operate a gas furnace in the home with less fuel and less noise were announced today by the Typhoon Air Conditioning Division, Hupp, Inc.

Developed by scientists for use in the electronic systems of space vehicles, solid state circuitry was applied to home furnaces for the first time by company engineers.

The electronically activated furnace, instead of switching on and off, circulates warm air uniformly throughout the home, eliminating cold pockets of stagnant air and convection drafts.

Mr. Don Pelione, president of the division, said the solid state control unit consists of two parts. A tiny thermometer located on the heating bonnet of the furnace converts heat changes into electrical impulses. Variations in this current are simplified by solid state circuitry to regulate the speed of the blower fan. Tiny variations in temperature directly affect the speed with which warm air is circulated throughout the home. Literally millions of small adjustments in blower speed permit the furnace to deliver just the right amount of air at a constant temperature to meet the heating requirement.

Less fuel is used because solid state controls prevent wasteful over-heating. There is no period when the furnace must strain at full speed to catch up with the thermostat setting. Thus cold floors, layers of chill air and draft conditions are eliminated. Less noise is created because the blower never roars on or off, and air never rushes through the ductwork fast enough to make rattling sounds.

The furnace can easily be adapted to any kind of gas —

Window-Boxes Improve the View, Easy to Set Up

If you want to brighten your home on a budget, try flower power. With real flowers.

This season, window boxes are back in vogue. They are simple and inexpensive to maintain. They complement any home, from a colonial cottage to a super-modern ranch or a small city apartment. Best of all, they ease decorating problems, by allowing last year's curtains to open on a brand-new view.

You can make your own window boxes or choose from ready-made boxes in a wide variety of materials. For most purposes, sturdy red cedar or California redwood boxes are best. They may be stained and shellacked, or painted with your favorite lively color. To guard against despoiling rust, you'll want to coat the metal brackets and trims with petroleum jelly from time to time.

Window-box flower growing requires very few tools. Your basic gardening kit can include just six items: pocket pruners with a pruning blade that folds like a knife, a watering can for dousing plants and mixing liquid fertilizer, a small spade, a miniature fork, a pair of gardening gloves and a large tube of multi-purpose petroleum jelly. "Vaseline" is fine.

Ideally, this equipment should be kept in a chest, cabinet or drawer near the window box. If you have a captain's chest, a colonial cobbler's bench or a stackable storage cube, your problem is solved. If your space is limited, simply hang the tools on dimmest racks inside a kitchen cabinet door, and find a cheerfully lacquered watering can that will double as a kitchen accessory.

Make it a point to take good care of your indoor gardening tools right from the start. Rust, which eats away at unprotected metal, will age the tools and flake on furniture and rugs. To avoid this annoyance, rinse each tool and dry it thoroughly after use, then coat the metal with a thin layer of petroleum jelly.

You can begin planting at the first warm sign of spring. After the window box is mounted, prepare it with a thin drainage layer of burlap or fiberglass to prevent nutrients from seeping away. Next, add a layer of rich porous soil that stops about two to three inches from the top of the box to allow "breathing room." Finally, set your pot grown plants in place.

For full sun, balcony petunias, verbenas, ivy geraniums or lantanas are among your best choices. Other upright flowers that enjoy sunlight include dwarf marigolds, dwarf snapdragons and dwarf zinnias. Avoid tall flowers; they look top heavy and scraggly in a window box.

At a shady window or a window that gets northern exposure, you should plant wishbone flowers (lycchia), wax begonias or coleus. These flowers need plenty of light and air, but do not require sunlight. They're ideal for urban window boxes, too, since they are wonderfully resistant to city smoke and soot.

Once planted, a flower box takes very little time or effort. And the effect? Sensational!

When applying wax to floors, furniture and paneling, most housekeepers make the mistake of applying it too liberally. This makes the wax hard to buff and results in a comparatively soft finish which is more likely to pick up dirt. For the toughest finish and the highest luster, wax should always be applied sparingly.

Safety Check Adds To Family Security

With a little planning, home improvement programs can accident-proof as well as beautify a house.

Awareness of potential accident situations is the key to removing dangers as remodeling and repair projects are being completed, according to Dr. John Henderson, medical director of Johnson and Johnson, and a first aid and safety authority.

"Prevention is still the best first aid for accidents," Dr. Henderson stresses.

He offers this safety checklist.

1. When cleaning and repainting gutters and downspouts for anticipated rains, make sure downspouts and drains do not flood onto walks or driveways.

Such a drainage pattern can cause dangerous icing in winter.

2. Police the lawn thoroughly.

Carefully inspect the entire area for rocks, pebbles, other debris. Such debris is dangerous when power gardening equipment is used. Running a power unit over a rock may cause the rock to fly dangerously, and may also damage the equipment.

3. While in the gardening mood, check trees for dead branches.

Prune them before they fall on unsuspecting family or friends.

4. As minor ravages of wintertime are repaired on the outside of the house, also double-check outdoor handrails.

See that they are secure enough to take such abuse as children's climbing or an adult's weight leaning on them.

Install protective screens on cellar window wells to prevent accumulations of debris and to protect toddlers from falling in.

5. Porches, outdoor steps and wooden decks must have non-slip surfaces.

On these areas, use a dull-finish paint instead of a glossy one, which tends to slick when wet. Or add a non-skid grit to the paint.

6. Don't let do-it-yourself enthusiasts spur projects which can't be finished properly or which may lead to danger.

Jobs such as roofing, chimney repairs or painting high up on the house exterior should be done by a professional.

7. Remember, safeguards only reduce the risk of accidents; they do not eliminate them.

Be prepared to cope with an emergency, should it occur, by having certain first aid equipment readily available throughout the house.

Dr. Henderson recommends that homeowners place inexpensive first aid kits in high-accident areas—the kitchen, bathroom, playground and workshop particularly. Such kits contain necessary basics to treat most minor injuries.

Never neglect minor cuts or scrapes, Dr. Henderson advises. Such injuries should be cleaned immediately with soap and water, then covered with a sterile dressing.

On more extensive wounds, such as deep cuts, the first concern is to stop bleeding. In most cases, this can be accomplished by firm pressure directly on the wound. Get medical aid as quickly as possible.

ABOUT HUMIDITY

For a free booklet on the importance of humidity during the heating season, and how to achieve the proper degree of humidity in a home, write Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

THAWING PIPES

To thaw frozen water pipes, apply heat gradually. Hot towels wrapping around the pipes help do the job safely.

Now Porch Can Be Extra Living Room

Is your house so spacious that you can afford to close off one room for the winter?

Few homeowners could answer this question, "Yes." But that's what happens in homes with a screened-in porch.

In warm weather, a screened-in porch is a pleasure—a fine place to relax, to entertain. The children use it as an outdoor playroom.

When cold winds start to blow, the porch goes off limits. That convenient extra room is winter-bound and useless until spring.

A glass-enclosed porch poses no such problems. Instead, it offers year-round comfort and enjoyment, and opens the house to the seasonal beauties of the outdoors.

Turning a screened-in porch into a glass-enclosed room isn't difficult. The roof, support posts and floor are already there.

What's required are the right windows, insulation and heating.

Stock awning or hopper windows of ponderosa pine serve well for an enclosed porch. They open at a 45-degree angle (awnings out, hoppers in) for free air flow, have a large glass expanse for good visibility, and open and close easily.

They can be banked in a series across the wall, or used in combination with fixed-glass windows to give the wide-open effect of glass walls.

Even though an enclosed porch is weathertight and gets lots of sunlight, it does need some form of heating. If feasible, simply extend the present indoor heating system. Or, use electric baseboard heating, gas or electric space heaters, or one of the heat pumps that heat in winter and cool in summer.

Improvements Pay In More Than Cash

Outdoors, homes are getting a facelift with everything from new roofing and siding to new patio furniture and plantings. Indoors, rooms are responding to the magic of paneling, painting, wallpapering, flooring. Kitchens go modern; family rooms grow out of attics and basements; bathrooms expand and multiply. Repair and remodeling, expansion and modernization are in the air—it's home improvement time!

What's all this in aid of? Some proponents of home improvement hold that it's worthwhile to remodel because it's a good investment. Improving a home will increase property value and pay off with a better resale price, they say. True enough—but there's more to home improvement than property value, contends Edgar V. Hall, director of the National Home Improvement Council.

"We're used to spending substantial sums on cars, clothes, food, vacations, entertainment. We don't expect to recoup our expenses on these items," says Director Hall. "Why, then, should we expect to do so in the case of home improvement and remodeling?"

Remodeling pays its own dividends, he points out. For one thing, it enables families to enjoy a better over-all standard of living. Children stay at home when they have more space to play in. Tensions between parents and children are less, when a second or third bathroom relieves the usual morning congestion, or when there is a basement family room for play or entertaining.

Saves Time For Mom

Converting an attic into a bedroom or study can mean less time spent in front of television and better grades in school. It can mean a place for Dad to catch up on office work—or, it can provide guestroom space for overnight—or longer—visits from friends and relatives.

For Mom, of course, a more spacious, better-equipped kitchen or laundry can mean a new lease on life. She will have more time to spend in community activities, or in pursuing the hobby she once dropped to raise a family.

Improvements like these make a house more livable, and they are easy to finance, too.

"The monthly payments for the kind of improvements that excite the admiration of the neighborhood are substantially less than the payments on a new house," Mr. Hall says.

There are other factors to consider, too. Inasmuch as mortgage money may be in short supply, it is difficult to buy a new home, even for those who can afford the payments. This also means that there are fewer buyers for used homes, making it harder to resell a home.

More Contractors

The alternative, then, may be to improve the present home. Unlike mortgage funds for new homes, financing for remodeling is not hard to come by.

Carpet of Color on Concrete

Color-conscious homeowners have found a new method for adding a durable carpet of color to patio floors, with easy to apply concrete stains that provide colorful protection for the walking surface while maintaining the textural appeal of concrete.

The new concrete stains, for use on walkways, driveways and pool areas, come in a variety of colors designed to complement and be at home in their natural outdoor setting. According to a color consultant, the colors were selected for the harmony they have with Nature's color range. Also, any of the colors can be intermixed.

Earthy tones, floral shades, spruce colors—the complete range allows decorative flexibility to please the tastes of many families and homeowners who seek as much individuality in the color plan for the patio as they do for a living room.

The new stains roll on easily with a roller, a large paint brush, a push-broom or a spray gun. The surface to be stained should be free of dirt, wax or grease. Depending on the intensity of color desired, one coat of stain may do the job.

The stains penetrate concrete surfaces in depth and do not form a film or surface coating that peels, flakes or scuffs under severe use.

WHEN A COMBINATION DINING-FAMILY ROOM became too small for the family, a direct approach solved the problem: Make the room bigger by building an addition to it. Existing room and addition are united in design and appearance by textured, factory-finished hardwood plywood paneling on two accent walls. This view looks from dining area through open room divider, into family room. Paneling is Georgia-Pacific's Brasilia.

Vanity Answers Rush-Hour Need

In most families, one of the chief causes of morning bickering and getting the day off to a wrong start is competition for the bathroom.

For those who aren't in a position to add one or more bathrooms in the immediate future, answer to morning and evening rush-hour problems can be a source of water in the bedroom, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

Instead of the china bowl and pitcher of yesteryear, today's convenience is a handsome vanity lavatory with hot and cold running water. The complete unit consists of one, or preferably two, lavatory bowls sunk into a generous countertop, with the whole mounted on a cabinet that provides storage space.

The vanities come in all decorator styles, so they can harmonize with the rest of the bedroom furniture—early American, French provincial, modern Swedish or whatever.

Colored lavatory bowls can add a bold splash of color where desired.

Unightly rust and scale on rain gutters, metal porch rails and downspouts should be wire brushed. To prevent further rusting, spot prime bare areas with proper metal primer before applying finish coat.

Narrow slat blinds feature slats only one inch wide, with polyester tapes which actually serve as cords. Object is precise light and ventilation control. They're Ball Blinds, from Carey-McFall Company.

Vaporizer? Humidifier?
Here's What You Should Know About Both Systems

Many home-owners and apartment-dwellers both are confused about the difference between the functions of the vaporizer and the room humidifier.

The familiar vaporizer provides the conventional, hot steam therapy for the relief of upper respiratory distress. Most physicians recommend it for colds, sinusitis and similar ailments.

The portable, room humidifier, on the other hand, provides a cool mist to compensate for the lack of ambient moisture in the air on dry, heated rooms.

Relative humidity can be described as the amount of moisture in the air compared to the amount the air is able to hold at a given temperature. Warm air, of course, holds more moisture than cold air.

What happens is that when the air in a home or room is heated, its moisture-retaining capacity is increased. Therefore, the warm air tends to draw out moisture from furniture, walls and you and your complexion.

Many authorities believe that by causing the humidity in a room and thereby keeping your nasal passages moist, the room humidifier may help to prevent conditions that can bring on colds.

During the winter heating season, the dry air we breathe breaks down the protective, mucous membranes down into the throat, carrying with it bacteria, dust and other foreign matter, eventually to pass out of the body. The normal, moist lining dry out, and the mucus doesn't travel out of the body. Bacteria stay in the nose to irritate and possibly infect the nasal passages.

But the possible benefits of the room humidifier in preventing colds are perhaps outweighed by its many other positive advantages.

Above all, the room humidifier relieves discomfort—the discomfort of dry-heated rooms—by adding moisture to the air in the form of cool droplets. It prevents that awful, stuffy feeling many persons wake up with, the result of drying up of the nasal passages.

The portable room humidifier keeps both the complexion and

Let Color 'Flow' from Room to Room

On the inside, as well as the exterior, it is important to avoid the feeling that your room addition is an afterthought. Decorative materials for walls, floor and ceiling in the room should be consistent with those of the original house.

Color is especially important. The safest thing is simply to continue the basic color scheme of adjoining rooms, unless the function of the new room is totally different. In this case, you may choose to accentuate the difference by doing it in colors that provide a pleasing, compatible contrast. If your room addition is to be a family room, you can add to the pleasure of it by decorating and furnishing in a friendly, informal atmosphere. Handsome, pre-finished plywood paneling is ideal for the walls. The floor could have colorful, comfortable scatter rugs.

Because some of the activities in a successful family room may tend to be noisy, you will probably want acoustic tile for the ceiling.

DESIGN YOUR OWN THEATRE CENTER FOR REEL FAMILY ENTERTAINMENT

Suddenly the house lights dim. The curtains part and the movie goes on to show a recent vacation, baby's first step or a birthday party in life-like color.

Home movies are so popular today that many families have designed their own "theaters." Such facilities enable them to show long movies in comfort. Some also are equipped for special effects of the moment movies. The most simply presses a button. The projector starts to pure impressively. A moment or two later, while everyone still is exclaiming with admiration, the lights go up, the show is over and the group turns back to talking.

Appropriately, such centers also provide facilities for storing film, lights, splicing and taping equipment and cameras. The family room is an ideal place for this since most are large enough to accommodate a chair for the audience.

One helpful tip focuses on outfitting a wall into a movie center by starting with an inexpensive unpainted bookcase.

First, cover the wall with a flowered ticking and place the bookcase in front of it. Cover the bookcase with ticking, add a curtain rod and curtains behind which you can store movie equipment.

Today movie cameras and projectors are so compact and easy to store. For example, streamlined equipment such as the Kodak Instamatic M85 movie projector, which accepts both 8mm and the new super 8 film, is small and self-contained. Its cover swings up to position the spindles automatically for operation. And it has built-in storage space for the take-up reel. In addition to movie equipment, the bookcase can be used to store still camera equipment, television, tape recorder, stereo and speakers.

Use contact glue to attach a movie screen permanently to the wall above the bookcase. Flank the screen with curtains made of the same ticking. They can be drawn to protect the screen from dust, dirt and possible damage when the theater is not in use. And the screen will always be perfectly flat. It'll be ready at the push of a button if you add a real theater touch: a traverse rod that works electrically. And the same goes for curtains at the window. If you plan to show movies during the day, be sure to give them a light-proof lining.

An alternative idea to project and hide the screen when it's not in use—and one which will appeal to the amateur shutterbug—is to have a favorite snapshot enlarged to cover it. Mount the enlargement on hardboard. Use a couple of aluminum strips to make sliding track. Want to show movies? Just give the photo a tap and down the track it sails.

Ideally, the projector should be back of the wall at the other side of the room and permanently mounted to show through an opening in the wall. A separate outlet should be provided so that when the room lights go out, the projector will still have power.

For a fancier installation, have an electrician install separate switches to turn out the lights and turn on the projec-tor at the same time. Fancier still is a dimmer control.

With your own movie theater, thus equipped, you'll find you're showing your movies (and slides, too) more often. And to the increased comfort and enjoyment of your family and friends.

Today's homes should offer relief from the stresses of a fast-paced world and a big part of this age of mechanization is noise. Noise is on the march in the United States today and quiet comfort is becoming recognized as a major ingredient making up the living environment.

You can see the added emphasis on quiet living all around you. Major appliances manufacturers are offering quieter models.

PREVENT SLIPPING

Owners of workshop table saws know how difficult it sometimes is to keep wood from slipping across the face of the miter gauge (the cross-cut guide) when cutting at an angle. As the wood is fed into the saw blade, it must be held very tightly against the polished metal face of the miter gauge to keep it from slipping. One way to prevent this is to cover the metal face of the miter gauge with a sheet of fine grit sandpaper. Cement the sandpaper in place with ordinary rubber cement after cutting it to the proper size.

A Favorite Household Aide Can Renew Furniture's 'Complexion'

Only antique furniture is granted the privilege of looking its age... and it has to be a hundred years old or better to qualify. So if any of your furniture, particularly that of recent vintage, is getting to look antique-y... it's time to restore its youth.

Tables, most vulnerable to wear and tear, seem to age the fastest. Usually finished, as is most wood furniture, with varnish lacquer, or sometimes shellac and rubbed to a high polish, they're prone to scratches, alcohol stains, heat marks and blenn (a gray discoloration), or the affliction may be nothing more serious than a build-up of old furniture wax that has turned dark and blotchy.

Unupholstered chairs come second in terms of aging. Here you have a different set of problems. Tops, where chairs are grasped to be pulled away from the table, discolor. Legs and rungs get scuffed, particularly when there are youngsters in the house who like to either swing their feet as they sit so that heels hit the rungs or wrap their feet round the legs.

Now while professional restoring is costly, the do-it-yourself variety calls for little more than an expenditure of your time. It's time you won't begrudge when the job is done and you see the results and count your savings.

The most tedious and time-consuming part of the operation is removing the old finish. While most amateurs associate this step with special hardware store-bought products, the professional restorers who work on fine old pieces prefer the common household cleaner, sal soda concentrated, which you find in the laundry supply section of your local grocery store. This offers some distinct advantages to the do-it-yourselfer. Since it's odorless you don't have to work outdoors or in large airy, probably chilly quarters as a precaution against toxic fumes. It's far less hard on your hands and costs a fraction of what the special products do.

The strength of the solution you'll need... you simply pour sal into hot water... is determined by the malady. For a simple case of wax build-up, three tablespoons of the sal to

PROTECT ROOF FROM DRIVING SPRING RAINS

In many sections of the country many more weeks of "winter" weather are still ahead. And heavy spring rains will surely follow. Let this be a reminder for homeowners to give their homes a thorough maintenance inspection.

Somewhere the roof generally gets neglected when it should be checked first, before the severities of weather take hold. The roof is subjected to severe exposure by rain, wind, sun, and not until a storm causes one or more serious leaks is the homeowner aware of his neglect.

Responsible roofers will check a roof free of charge and give estimates for any needed repairs or replacements. Preventive maintenance can avert rain damage to walls, ceilings, floors and furnishings.

Gutters must be cleaned and checked for rusted areas and gutter hangers checked to see that the gutters are properly fastened. Television antennas are major offenders on roofs, and the area around guy-wire anchors should be inspected for possible leaks.

Damaged or missing shingles must be replaced. It takes a careful inspection to determine if portions of many shingles have broken off and blown away or if shingles have cupped or split. Wind and stress may have loosened the roofing nails so heads no longer are in contact with the shingles, and this must be corrected.

Anything that projects through a roof is a danger source for leaks. Flashing around chimneys, pipes and vents and skylights should be inspected.

Should re-roofing be necessary, the homeowner should consider several important factors in selecting a quality roof: resistance to fire, wind and rain; color; uniform quality; insulation value; economy and low maintenance.

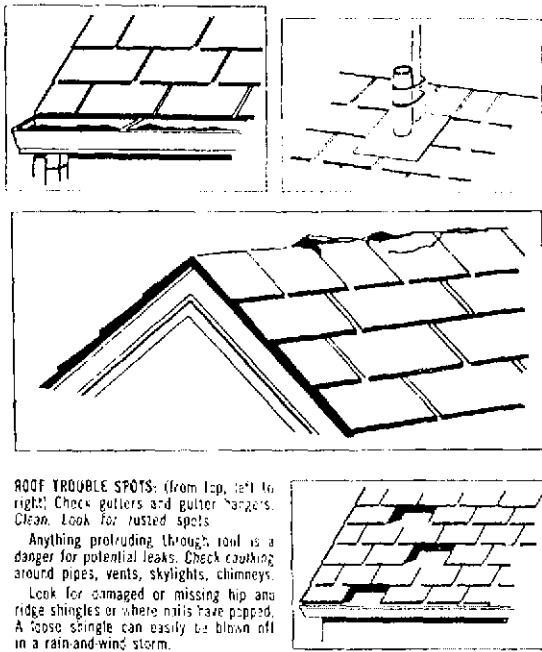

With the growing trend to easy-care living, heavy-weight five rated asphalt roofing, designed to last as long as 25 years, is an ideal choice. It also offers the family the assurance of fire safety and protection from flying fire brands and embers which constitute a threat during a fire. It bears the Underwriters' Laboratories Class "C" label for fire resistance as recommended for new construction and remodeling by the International Association of Fire Chiefs and the National Fire Protection Association. Homeowners in some areas will find five rated asphalt roofing enables the house to qualify for lower fire insurance premiums.

The color of the roof is a very important consideration in the total color styling of a home. Homeowners can select from a wide variety of colors and blends.

The color selected may have an important bearing on the home's year-round comfort because white or lighter-colored ceramic coated granules reflect solar heat in the summer, helping to reduce air-cooling costs.

Important to owners of untreated combustible wood roofs are simple instructions on how to re-roof over the old with fire rated asphalt roofing.

The booklet is published as a public service by 3M Company and is available for 25 cents to cover mailing and handling from 3M Company, P.O. Box 3506, 4M Center, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

ROOF TROUBLE SPOTS: (from top, left to right) Check gutters and gutter hangers. Clean. Look for rusted spots. Anything protruding through roof is a danger for potential leaks. Check caulking around pipes, vents, skylights, chimneys. Look for damaged or missing hip and ridge shingles or where nails have popped. A loose shingle can easily be blown off in a rain and wind storm.

HANGING DRILL.
Home mechanics who like to keep their tools mounted on wall brackets near the workbench are often at a loss when trying to decide how to hang an electric drill. One of the easiest ways is to insert a screweye in the chuck of the drill, then tighten this securely, with the loop sticking out. The drill can then be hung up by hooking the loop of the screweye over a nail, or over a straight hook.

For easier outdoor painting, remember a good exterior paint job requires a clean, sound surface. This means you should use a scraper or power sander to remove loose paint.

Additions Hold Key To Luxury

Luxury additions to a house may or may not add markedly to its resale value, but they add zest to its use. Once the second bathroom is added and the kitchen is improved, it's the swimming pool, the greenhouse, the sauna, the barbecue area or garden living room that make a house a home.

More leisure and more money make all these contributions to the good life a possibility, no longer a dream, to millions of homeowners.

Swimming pools are a dramatic example of the growth of luxurious living in America of the '60's. Nine years ago, according to the National Swimming Pool Institute, there were 87,500 residential pools in the country. This year the number has grown to more than half a million.

Ways to Finance
Financing a luxury addition—whether swimming pool or tennis court—can be done in a number of ways.

Banks will make home improvement loans for property improvements that they consider realistic—that is, in line with the money value of the house. Average interest rates vary from five to seven dollars per $100 discounted in advance. Repayment time usually goes up to five years for $5,000.

However, the low-cost FHA loans, available for some structural improvements, do not apply to "luxury" improvements.

Get Three Estimates
Contractors, too, will make improvement loans through their own banks. The home improver should shop for a contractor, getting at least three cost estimates. Once a contractor is chosen, he may arrange the financing for the addition.

Contractors' loan rates are six to nine dollars per $100 discounted in advance. More expensive than bank loans, these loans are useful when the borrower for some reason cannot get a loan himself or simply wants to save time and legwork.

The homeowner who is fortunate—or foresighted—enough to have an open-end mortgage can borrow for home improvements up to the amount that has already been paid off.

TAKING THE EDGE OFF GARDENING CHORES IS the aim of a wide variety of products now available to assist the green-thumb set. Here, the work-saver is steel lawn edging, being installed around a flower bed to prevent garden washouts and unwanted spread of grass. It's Car-Mac Color-Clad, from Carey-McFall.

Beautification Plans Start With Cleaning Up Litter

From a homeowner's individual efforts to improve his home grounds to complete urban renewal, home and community beautification projects are on the increase, for both practical and aesthetic reasons.

Nearly all such projects start in the same way, with one essential step: Cleaning up litter. And there's good cause for this. Litter prevention is a prerequisite to property beautification, according to Keep America Beautiful, Inc.

"Just as a woman would not put cosmetics on a dirty face, so must littered property be cleaned up and kept clean, before it can be beautified," says Allen H. Seed Jr., executive vice president of the national litter-fighting organization.

Loss in property values is a big factor, too. "Property owners who permit yards and surrounding neighborhoods to be cluttered with litter are depreciating their investment," Mr. Seed explains. "There seems to be mutual agreement that litter-free property will appreciate much faster."

While it is difficult to place an accurate price tag on this loss, real estate men and builders agree that it is considerable. Anti-litter and beautification pro-

Lighting Accents Garden, Entrance

Lighting and landscaping work hand in hand, welcoming visitors to a hospitable home with a cheery "Hello." Carefully-placed lighting helps shrubbery and other plantings around the entrance stand out effectively; in the garden, lighting highlights various landscaping features.

Several types of garden lighting units are available to draw attention to the work of a green thumb in garden and shrubbery areas of the yard. These units range from various types of walk lights to spot lights. Nearly all of these fixtures are designed to blend inconspicuously with their surroundings.

In most cases, the exterior appearance of a house can be improved immeasurably by dressing up the entry way. An easy way to do this is by the addition of a pair of flanking outdoor wall bracket lighting fixtures on both sides of the door. Keep their size in balance with the house.

Post lights, too, add a tremendous amount of personality to a home. Now, many are available in extra high, double lantern models, very reminiscent of the light posts of bygone eras.

These units give the yard and entry way of a home an extra dimension, as well as providing a safe passage along the walk or driveway to the door.

In situations where a sizeable overhang projects from the house, perhaps above an entry door or perhaps along a wall above a patio, fixtures hung from chains and matching the wall brackets and yard lights are used to add a family look to outdoor lighting, and of course, provide additional illumination.

Many post lanterns, wall brackets and ceiling fixtures for outdoor use are styled traditionally, with a variety of Early American types available. A good selection of contemporary fixtures are also easily found in the modern manner. Local lighting centers carry a complete line.

Most outdoor lighting efforts are further enhanced by the use of an electronic dimmer that varies the light levels from total darkness to full brightness with the turn of a knob.

The nice thing about such home improvements as outdoor lighting is that these projects can be planned totally, well in advance of installation, and then done in stages, depending on flexibility of the budget.

Why and How To Make Plans For Landscaping

Why landscape a home? For most people, the self-evident answer is the right one—to improve the appearance of the home. Another reason has great importance. Beautiful landscaping increases home value, too.

When to do landscaping? This question is more complex, since it usually involves another: How to pay for it?

Many older homes need a renewal of landscaping, because plants have grown too large for available space or have become untidy or diseased. And many newer homes need additional landscaping. The plantings around the brand new home may be very basic—a lawn, a few shrubs and trees.

Yet the homeowner who wants landscaping is likely to have other demands on his finances. He's paying for his new home, or, if it's an older home, he's paying for major home improvements such as new siding. He may wonder about taking on the added responsibility of paying for a complete landscaping job.

In many cases, landscaping costs can be added to an existing mortgage, if the same bank handles both the loan and the mortgage. Other types of loans to finance landscaping are available from banks and savings and loan associations. Or, nurserymen may offer their own financing plans.

For the homeowner who prefers to arrange for landscaping on a cash basis, there's a simple solution: Do it step by step.

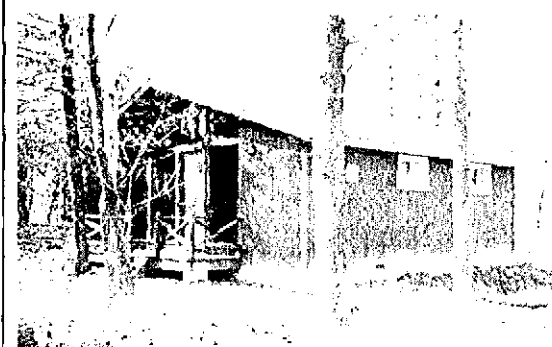

Start with an over-all plan for the final effect desired, and take care of most urgent landscaping needs first—foundation plantings or replantings, for example. A "garden living room" might be next. Other plantings can be added as time and money permit.

Additional pleasure for the family comes from watching the home landscaping grow.

Local nurserymen can provide helpful information on choosing trees and plants best for the area, landscaping for year-round beauty and low maintenance, providing proper drainage—and many other pointers to help homeowner and family get maximum value and enjoyment from landscaping.

That big look graces modest ranch home

"I don't want a big house, but I want it to look larger than it is."

This is a familiar request to architects who specialize in residential design. Such requests can be handled without too much trouble, especially where the plot permits construction of a house with a long, low look, so stylish these days.

But too often this illusion of spaciousness stops at the front door. What seemed to be a big house on the outside appears to shrink on the inside.

In the latest house of the week, architect Samuel Paul has designed a modest home (1474 square feet of living area) which not only looks larger on both the outside and the inside, but more important, lives larger. Good open planning and precise zoning are combined to produce these effects.

A nice-sized foyer serves as the formal entry. It is fairly open to the adjacent living room, thereby visually increasing the living room, yet it is separate enough to act as a fine "weather stop" and reception hall. The living room features an attractive fireplace and bow style window overlooking the front portico.

To the left of the foyer, there is a short hall with a guest closet, family closet and linen closet. This leads to another foyer which serves as the circulation area between the three bedrooms and the large main bathroom.

In this bathroom, the water closet has been separated from the bathing and washing area. In addition, it has been located so that it can also be entered from the rear of the house, a most handy arrangement since it is only two steps from the rear door and kitchen. There is a long vanity with dual basins. The master bedroom has a separate bath and generous closet space.

The balance of the home is made up of a 32 foot 8 inch expanse of kitchen, dining and family facilities stretching across the rear of the house. Note the absence of partitions in this area. The kitchen counter and hanging cabinets together serve as an effective physical divider, yet retain the quality of openness.

The flexibility of this arrangement is such that, if the occasion arises, it is possible to arrange an enormous banquet table in the dining area because there is no problem of walls separating it from the family room.

Dining space also is provided within the kitchen; this space is large enough for a small table for everyday family meals. The kitchen itself is roomy, attractive, efficient and as convenient as could be from any part of the house.

Another point of interest is the pair of folding doors separating the dining family room, thus permitting the two spaces to be joined if the need should ever arise.

An ideal outdoor complement to this home is the large screened porch adjoining the family room, with a sliding glass door separating the two. The porch is located in back of the two-car garage, which has a door there and another off the front portico.

The exterior is a tasteful blend of stone veneer and vertical boards. For accent it has the previously-mentioned front portico, which is arched.

H-88 STATISTICS

Design H-88 has a living room, dining-family room, kitchen, three bedrooms, two full baths, a screened porch, front portico and two-car garage. The habitable area totals 1474 square feet, which does not include the garage. Plans are included for a full basement. The over-all dimensions are 75 feet, two inches by 33 feet one inch.

Design for Fencing Is Project for Pool

An attractive, functional fence adds safety and privacy to backyard swimming pools. In some communities, regulations make such fencing a must.

One suburban homeowner and his neighbor found a handsome solution to the need for swimming pool fencing, by building a perimeter fence of unusual design.

Highlights of the project are spelled out by the Masonite Home Service Bureau.

Planning the project was the important first step. All materials were ordered and tools assembled, including the rental of a post digger. With materials on hand and a definite plan to follow, the two men completed the project in two weekends.

At intervals of 10 feet, post-holes were dug ("hardest part of the job") for four-by-four inch posts 10 feet long.

Cross-pieces of two-by-four inch lumber then were nailed to the posts at the center and eight inches from the top and bottom of the fence. The post installations and framework were completed in one weekend. The installations of panels in another.

Two-by-seven foot panels of a hardboard siding with a textured surface were used alternately on the front and back of the framework. A three-inch overlap permits the circulation of air through the fence but assures complete privacy.

The plan arranged for the posts to fall behind the panels facing the pool. One of the panels was hinged to form a gate.

A space of about two inches at the bottom of the fence allows for drainage.

The textured four-by-eight foot hardboard panels were trimmed to size with a power saw.

Different colors were used on the alternating panels facing the pool — bittersweet and an off-white with a slight yellowish cast. The textured sides of the panels face the pool. The smooth backs, visible from the outside, were all painted bittersweet.

In addition to its functions as a fence, the perimeter barrier serves as an interesting backdrop for patio furniture. Several towel rings were installed on the panels for convenience.

Second Sink Eases Home Entertaining

Elegant dinner parties, teenage record hops or backyard barbecues—almost any kind of entertaining goes easier with a hospitality center, and a "hospitality sink."

Especially designed for water convenience in limited space, a stainless steel hospitality sink can be set up anywhere in the home. Usually, it's installed away from the regular sink, to relieve traffic around the food preparation area.

Such sinks are suitable for indoor or outdoor use, since stainless steel is impervious to weather. Tall, gooseneck faucets allow glasses and ice trays to be filled with ease, according to Elkay Manufacturing Company.

OUTDOOR CARPET

"Patio Plush," a rug-and-carpet material from Norwood Mills, features half-inch pile of Vectra olefin fiber, knitted in two-tone patterns or random stripes as well as in solid colors. Both solids and patterns are available in area rugs, or in yardage for wall-to-wall installations for use on patios, porches, swimming pool decks as well as indoors.

IN ONE STEP

"Tile Cleaner and Protector," a new silicone from Dow Corning, is said to clean, polish, protect and waterproof in one step, on wall or floor tile.

Bow or Bay Windows Add Air of Spaciousness

Is there a room in your house that needs a new decorative highlight, a sense of spaciousness, wide visibility, and lots of sunlight and air? A wood bow or bay window could be the answer.

Possibly the most beautiful window units available, bows (which have a graceful outward curve) and bays (which are straight in the center and angled at each end) have long been popular for living rooms in both traditional and contemporary houses. Now, imaginative homeowners are recognizing their advantages for any room that would benefit from a distinctive window treatment, natural light and a view.

Kitchens, for example, are often shortchanged when it comes to window beauty and visibility. A wide-expanse bow or bay window, readily available at local lumber dealers in pre-assembled stock units of ponderosa pine, becomes a decorative bonus for the room.

Separate staircases feature two-story home

In the days of our gracious past, many two-story homes featured separate entrances and stairs for the servants. This enabled families to entertain and otherwise enjoy their daily lives while all of the necessary chores and tasks of cooking, cleaning, etc., were carried out with no interference.

As the years have passed, and our society has become largely servantless and child-centered, these entrances have changed function, while the second stairs have virtually disappeared, often to the dismay of many a big family.

There are probably many times when the adults of such a family, with teenage children, wish they had two separate houses, not just separate stairs.

Our newest House of the Week may come as close to that goal as practical in a traditionally-styled home. It's a two-story designed by architect Samuel Paul expressly for a family of three or more children, with a distinct separation of the private, adult areas and the everyday family areas.

It's a house for two generations, but under one attractive roof.

Although a fairly sizable home, the styling is not pretentious; rather, it is a subdued and tasteful adaptation of the New Orleans two-story with its overhanging second-floor balcony and ornamental iron railings.

The planning of the home far exceeds the conventional zoning concepts prevalent in many two-story designs. The ground floor is a "split-down-the-middle" between the formal and informal zones.

The children could be having a party in the family room without ever disturbing the bridge club meeting in the dining room.

The formal (or adult) entertaining section is composed of a large living room and a separate dining room, plus a striking reception foyer that is two stories high. The foyer is the only entrance to be found in this home; it is highlighted by a circular staircase sweeping up to the second floor and backed up with wood paneling and artificial planters. A powder room and two large closets adjoin the foyer via an ante-room. This setup is much too formal for everyday use by the children. Thus, located on the other side of the house, is another full entrance ensemble, complete with its own foyer and closets.

This entrance gives access to the everyday rooms; in other words, the kitchen, the bay dinette and the family room with its cathedral ceiling. A lavatory can be located here also, if desired, or the space used for a walk-in pantry if the lavishness of 3½ baths is felt to be excessive.

A second staircase in this area gives access to the second floor and the basement. It provides a means of going from the daily activity areas to the children's bedrooms without moving over into the formal part of the house.

The master suite features a large room with its own fireplace, sliding doors to the front balcony, a spacious dressing room and a full bath.

On the other side are the children's three bedrooms with a full bath and a dual-basin vanity.

Back on the main floor are several features that should not go unnoticed. Note the spare room which bridges the formal and informal foyers. It can be used as a sewing room, TV room or extra bedroom, with the rear foyer serving as its main entrance.

Or it can serve as a den or library, with the main foyer then serving as its principal entry. In either event, it has access to a bath or lavatory.

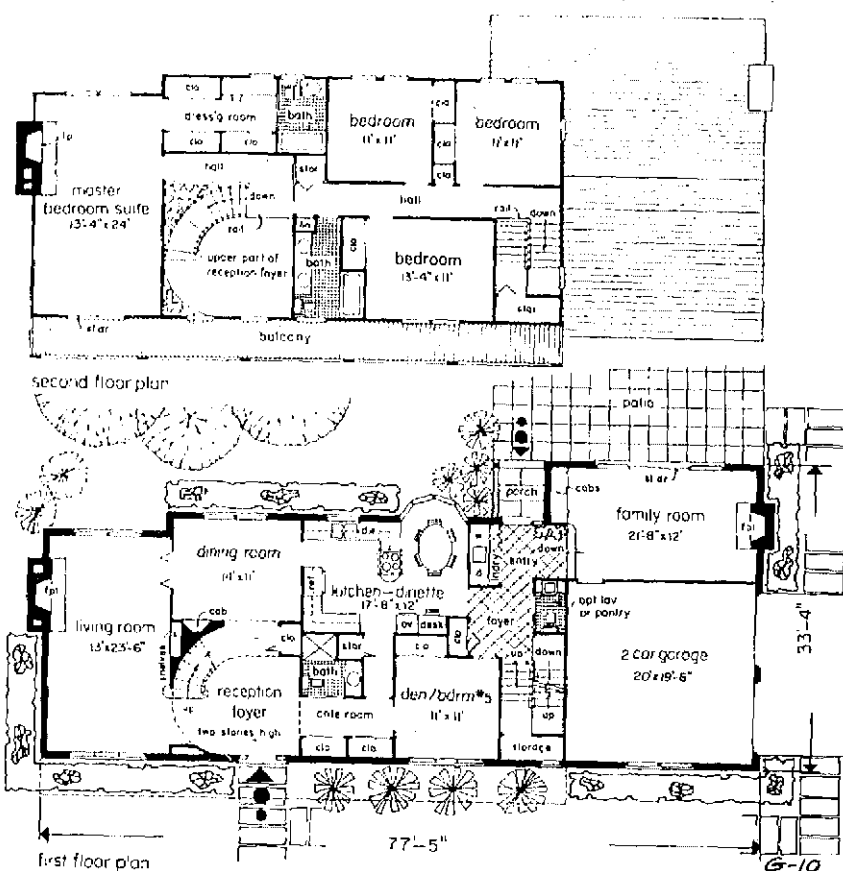

Other features include fireplaces in both the living room and family room, and space for built-in shelves in the living room, a china cabinet in the dining room and 16-ft. cabinets in the family room. In the kitchen are a wall oven,

G-10 STATISTICS

Design G-10, a two story traditional, has a living room, dining room, kitchen, dinette, family room, spare room, full bath, optional lavatory, main reception foyer, secondary foyer, laundry and two-car garage on the first floor, with a habitable area of 1768 square feet. On the second floor are a master bedroom suite, three children's bedrooms, two full baths, a dressing room and a balcony, with a livable area of 1330 square feet. Overall dimensions, including the garage, are 77 feet 5 inches by 33 feet 4 inches.

FRONT-LOAD PORTABLE CAN BE CONVERTED to built-in. Dishwasher features Selecta-Level Racks which give homemakers the advantage of two adjustable upper racks that can be moved up or down for complete loading flexibility; in addition to 4 other cycles, there's a Mini-Wash cycle, which uses less water, less detergent, requires only 14 minutes. For extra counter space, 2 carving top of cherry wood. Dishwasher is available in dark copper, avocado, new Harvest or white. . . . by General Electric.

large piece in order to fit it under a top rack. It's easy to arrange a full load of dishes with hard-to-fit items.

2. Mini-Wash. This is a new short wash cycle, designed particularly for slightly soiled dishes. It uses less water, less detergent and less time (only 14 minutes). ## 'U' plan gives ranch look of comfort

A ranch house, with all the rooms on a single floor, must have a certain amount of length to it to avoid a square or boxy look.

There are reasons, however, why most ranches do not have the rooms strung out in a straight line. For one thing, a plot with enough frontage for that type of house is not always available.

For another, many persons are not sold on the idea of a house with a long, low look, although it must be admitted that some seek out just such a design.

For those who like the basic ranch style and have neither the land nor the desire for a house with a lengthy front, the U-shaped plan is ideal.

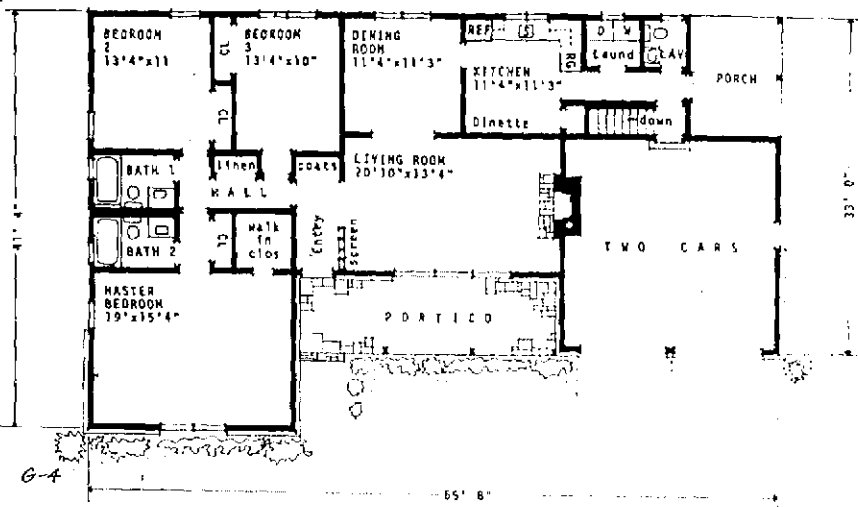

It has the important ranch advantage of no stairs to climb during housekeeping chores and at bedtime, cuts down on the length of the house, gives it a welcoming look, and provides an interior arrangement that is highly suitable for easy livability.

An excellent example of a U-shaped ranch is Design G-4, created for the House of the Week series by architect Herbert C. Struppman. From the wide gracious entrance portico, sheltered by the wings of the bedrooms and double garage, one gets an immediate appearance of comfort.

The handsome living room windows provide a view of the front garden or lawn and the street, but still offer the family privacy because of the width of the portico. It is always somewhat surprising what a sight and sound buffer this open yet sheltered area can provide.

The interior plan makes the best of the "U" Minimum hall, but enough for a good flow of traffic, are used. Thus, the bedroom wing includes a feeling of space and isolation. Its center area is efficient, with two baths back to back and a closet complex that would do credit to a more costly house.

For the parents' room, the full bathroom and huge closets act as a privacy shield—a kind of twin vestibule that makes this room a real suite and frees every foot of it for furniture placement.

No youngster would complain about the rear bedrooms. They have a closet wall between, offering almost 13' of storage space to the two rooms.

The living room is nicely scaled, with its highlights of front window area and side fireplace making it most adaptable to formal decor. You can be comfortable in a room like this no matter how you handle it.

Through an arch at the back, the dining room is square and suitable for a family room if this is preferred to a separate dining room.

The service and utility areas complete a practical floor plan. A nice square kitchen has a dinette corner and a step-saving L counter for appliances and kitchen storage. A big pantry closet is a feature. To the side, there's a windowed laundry section with a lavatory adjacent.

A secluded back porch is big enough to be used as a play area. The service door via the porch and the garage access to the back vestibule make it easier to keep back-door traffic where it belongs.

The 1600 square feet of habitable area are utilized to the utmost in this well-planned, comfortable house.

G-4 STATISTICS
Design G-4 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, laundry area, three bedrooms, two baths, a lavatory, a rear porch, a two-car garage and a front portico. The habitable area totals 1600 square feet, not including the garage and porches. Over-all dimensions, which include everything, are 65 feet eight inches by 41 feet four inches.

Moms Want Mudroom

A mudroom is one of the most-wanted home additions, especially among homemakers with small children, according to a survey reported by the Plumbing Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

Chief purpose of the mudroom is to trap mud, snow and other dirt before it gets into the living area. It does so by changing the traffic pattern into the house.

The well-equipped mudroom should have a water closet, a sink with hot and cold water, a drinking fountain, a place to hang clothes and a work counter where flowers can be arranged and vegetables fresh from the garden can be washed.

This means that the mudroom is not only a place to shed damp boots and clothes before entering another part of the house, it's also ideal for children to use while playing or gardeners while working in the yard.

Ideal place for a mudroom is just off the kitchen. Other good spots are the garage or the laundry room, if it has an outside entrance.

FOR DECORATING
Cast from carvings made in hardwood, new plastic "Designer Carvings" come in the form of medallions, plaques and mouldings, which can be applied to doors or furniture, with nails or adhesive. For full-color brochure, free, write "Designer Carvings Decorating Idea Book," Filon Division, Vistron Corporation, 12333 South Van Ness Avenue, Hawthorne, Calif. 90230.

RESEMBLES WOOD
"Lite Beam," a synthetic ceiling beam produced of polystyrene, has the appearance of natural wood in its graining and colorings, says the manufacturer, Am-Finn Sauna, Inc. Finished and pre-cut with a two-by-two inch underside center channel, it is available in Old English dark walnut, Colonial medium mahogany and Federal light oak. A four by six foot "Lite Beam" weighs only eight pounds.

Three-bedroom ranch has individuality

The long, low, sleek lines of a contemporary ranch get the deluxe treatment in the latest House of the Week.

The basic plan of this house is rectangular, with a minimum of the jogs and offsets that add to building costs. But note the exterior features that provide individuality. There's a decorative chimney that gives character to the front of the house, yet serves the practical purposes of acting as a room divider and permitting a two-way fireplace for the dining room and the sunken living room.

There are plastic domes set into the roof over the dining room for a dramatic touch as well as light infiltration. There is an interesting, concrete block grill stretching 20 feet 8 inches in front of the bedroom windows to afford effective privacy.

And there's a large roof overhang protecting the front entrance with 5 feet of cover.

On the inside, three well-defined areas have been laid out by architect Rudolph A. Matern. From the foyer, one can move into any of these sections (the living room-dining room, three-bedroom wing or family room-kitchen-laundry) without crossing either of the other two.

One step down from the foyer is the living room. It has a large bow window and the previously-mentioned fireplace set into the visible chimney. The fireplace extends through to the dining room.

Straight ahead from the foyer is a combination family room-kitchen 26 feet of open service and living space. This type of arrangement is becoming more and more popular. All of the women's conferences on housing have uncovered the requirement of having some family living going on during the food-preparation period.

Double sliding glass doors at this point lead to a rear terrace and give a full view of the garden or rear lawn. One wall of the family-room portion is covered with cabinets and shelves. On the other side is a breakfast area, then the kitchen appliances and then the excellent service arrangement. Here are a covered porch and a closet, a laundry-mud room with a lavatory, a stairway to the basement and an entry to the garage.

The three bedrooms at the right side of the house have ample closets. The master bedroom has its own bath, while the very large hall bathroom has a linen closet inside of it as well as outside.

Ever come out of a tub or shower soaking wet and find no towel in its accustomed place on a rod or rack? That would not be a problem here—If somebody remembers to keep clean towels in the inside closet. Having the two baths back to back, by the way, reduces plumbing costs.

And, in this case, the baths act as a sound buffer between the main bedroom and the family room. The foyer and two closets perform the same function between the living room and the other bedrooms.

There is no question that if you want the one-floor conveniences of a long ranch house, with its absence of stair-climbing to the bedrooms, you need a fairly sizable plot.

Design H-86 is 75 feet 2 inches long if you want a one-car garage, 83 feet 1 inch for a two-car garage. A look at the floor plan shows that, either way, there is plenty of storage space and room for a work bench. The living area of the house totals 1510 square feet, not including the garage.

H-86 STATISTICS

Design H-86 is a contemporary ranch with a living room, dining room, family room, kitchen, mud room, laundry, three bedrooms, two bathrooms and a lavatory, with a living area of 1510 square feet. Sliding glass doors in the family room permit passage to a rear terrace.

The over-all dimensions are 75 feet 2 inches by 24 feet 6 inches if a one-car garage is built, increasing to 83 feet 1 inch by 24 feet 6 inches for a two-car garage. Entrance to the basement is down a stairway near the rear door and close to a covered porch.

Experts Give Tips On Care of Power Mowers

Proof of the popularity of gardening today is the fact that there are over 20 million power lawn mowers in use, according to recent industry estimates.

Lined up hub-to-hub, that many machines could mow a swath 7,000 miles wide.

Today's mowers are ruggedly built machines that can last six or seven years with proper maintenance. However, their life can be cut in half if they do not get proper care.

Power garden equipment experts for Mobil Oil suggest that owners check their mowers each Spring to insure long life and maximum efficiency. Here are their pointers.

Remove rotary mower blades and have them sharpened and balanced. Actually, a new blade costs only a little more. Reels should only be sharpened by a specialist.

Caked, dry grass should be removed from the underside of rotary mowers particularly if the unit's exhaust is under the blade housing. The hot exhaust can ignite the dry grass and start a potentially dangerous fire.

When doing this, or any other work on a power mower, the spark plug wire should be removed to prevent accidental starting.

Oil and gas should be drained if this wasn't done when the mower was put away for the winter. The crankcase should then be refilled with a special power mower oil. Automotive engine oils should not be used; they are formulated to lubricate engines operating at varying speeds. Power mower engines operate at relatively constant speeds and, therefore, require special oils. Outboard motor oils should be used only with two-cycle engines.

The mower should be washed down with detergent and a scrub brush and rinsed with a hose. All oil plugs and gas caps should be tightened before doing this. A few drops of mower oil should be applied to wheel bearings and any oil cups.

Mower spark plugs rarely need cleaning. If you do remove

SHELF/LIGHT COMBO Shelf/Light, from Candelight Enterprises, combines indirect lighting with a handy shelf. The unit is practical for kitchen, bath, den or workshop. the plug and have a unit that requires a copper washer under it, do not re-use the old washer. It will not make a proper seal. A new plug and washer is the best bet.

With these simple steps out of the way, practically any power mower can be used throughout the entire season with little or no attention.

Split level seems two different homes

It takes a second look to recognize this house as a split level.

But a split level it is—and with all the economic advantages of a three-level residential structure.

However, it's a split level with a special look of elegance, thanks to an atrium entry, approached through garden gates hung in a curved brick wall. The double front doors are designed with diamond panes in the upper glazed panels.

Truly an unusual and distinctive exterior!

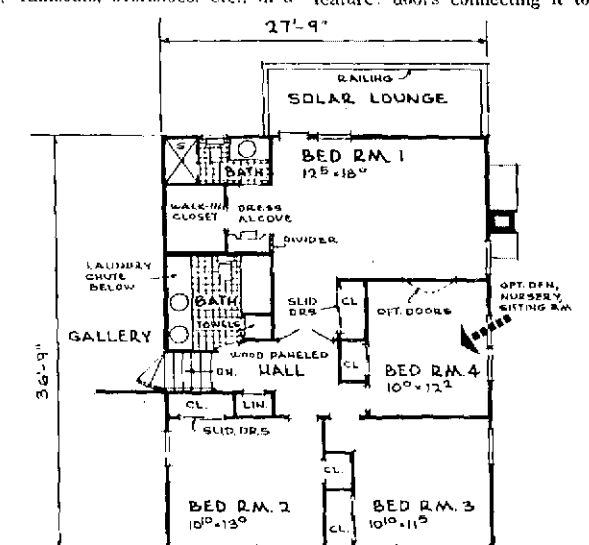

Upon entering this house, one finds himself in a huge foyer called a gallery by architect Herman H. York. A new general interest in are inspired him to design a foyer area with ample wall space to hang paintings or exhibit sculpture or display souvenirs gathered during travel holidays.

To the left is the formal living room with a fireplace on the outside long wall. This room is easy to furnish well, for it has a minimum of space lost to traffic. The separate dining room overlooks the rear garden. The kitchen (17 feet by 13 feet 3 inches) is as large as living rooms in many houses.

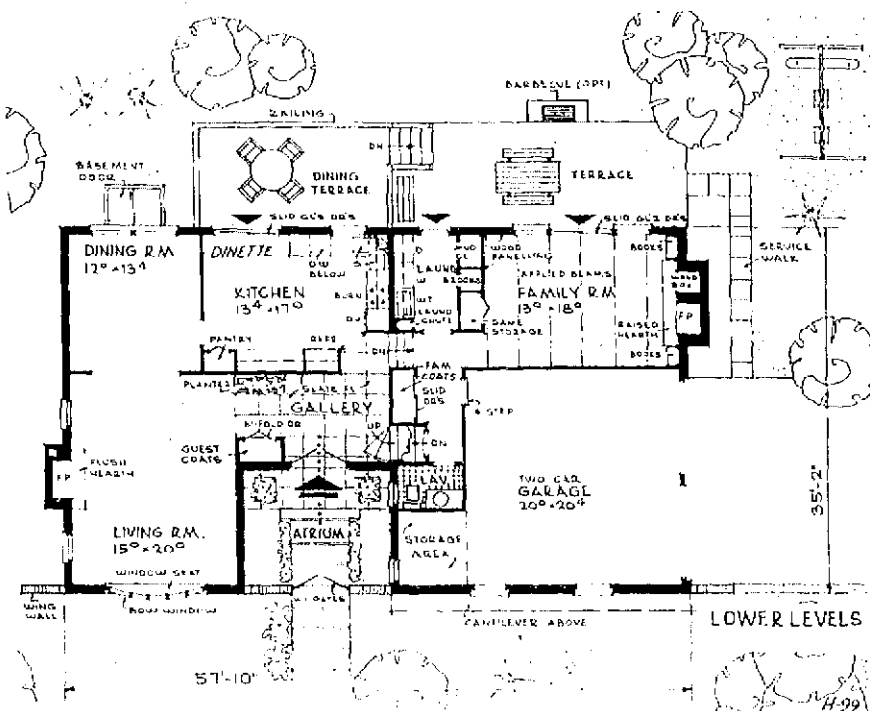

Here, sliding glass doors in the dinette space give ready access to outside dining and play areas. One such area is a dining deck, raised above the ground with redwood slat flooring and a stairway down to a terrace at grade level. An interesting corner double sink in the kitchen makes use of the corner counter, giving added space on each side.

Next to the kitchen is a laundry complete with space for clothes washer, dryer, laundry tray, clothes chute from the upper level, and mud and broom closets. From this area a door leads directly to the exterior, which incidentally creates a passage to the laundry near the garage.

In addition, we find a huge closet for "family" coats. This is the kind of small but welcome extra one appreciates after having lived in a house. It enables one to come home through the garage and deposit raincoats, overcoats, etc., in a back hall closet.

Tradesmen learn to place cleaned clothes in such an area without disturbing the household.

The family room has the warmth associated with a fireplace, which in this case occupies the focal point of interest. Added to this is a large wood box in a brick wall, flanked on each side by built-in bookcases.

Another useful item is the closet marked "game storage" for such things as folding chairs and bridge tables. Sliding glass doors lead from the family room to the terrace.

Upstairs are four bedrooms, grouped about a wood-paneled hall with a double lavatory bath serving three of the bedrooms. The laundry chute is reached through the lower part of the bathroom vanity.

In the owners' room, a dressing alcove, walk-in closet, an extra sliding door closet and a private bath with shower stall make for a comfortable master suite. Note that the owners' bedroom is approached through a double door.

Also, the fourth bedroom has been located with an optional feature: doors connecting it to the master bedroom. Should this bedroom become available, it can be used as a den for study or lounging.

It could also serve as a nursery, with the connecting door for surveillance over a young child.

Outside the owners' room, a solar balcony lounge gives opportunity for outdoor sunbathing, with direct access to the bedroom and shower.

There is a cellar under the living room, dining room and kitchen and gallery. The furnace is located in this area.

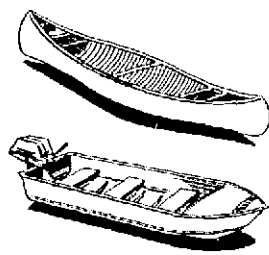

The two car garage is shown with doors to the side. Should the property be too narrow to allow this, the doors may be located at the front without seriously affecting the attractiveness of the exterior.

H-99 STATISTICS

Design H-99 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, dinette, family room, foyer-gallery, two terraces, atrium entrance, two-car garage, laundry area, four bedrooms, solar lounge and two and one-half baths. The habitable area of the two lower levels, not including the garage, is 1314 square feet. The upper level totals 1019 square feet. Overall dimensions are 57 feet 10 inches by 35 feet 2 inches.

NO MORE GLARE

Space Misers, Here's How To Stretch Closets!

Need more closet space? Then, reorganize, redesign and—while you're at it—line closets with aromatic red cedar, for a lifetime of moth protection.

Here's how to carry out a closet-space program.

Inventory closet contents and then design the most efficient method of housing the items.

Be a space miser! The conventional five to five and one-half foot drop to the floor from closet rods really isn't necessary.

Four and one-half will do for most overcoats and dresses, while most men's suits require only three and one-half feet. Women's blouses and jackets need even less.

By installing rods no higher than needed to serve their purpose, it's often possible to get a second rod almost at ceiling height, or to provide additional wall space for shelving.

Don't overlook the insides of closet doors. They make ideal locations for shoe bags or racks, a full length mirror or hooks for handbag storage.

Mark intended shelf locations on existing closet walls.

Cedar-lining the walls is a job that goes quickly. Installation instructions are included in every package of cedar lining, and the lumber pieces themselves are tongue-and-grooved for fast, tight assembly.

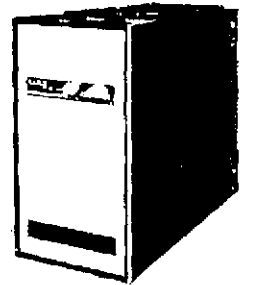

A word of caution: Never paint, shellac or otherwise finish the cedar. Such treatment will close the wood's pores and minimize the desired cedar aroma.

Cathedral ceilings add to shape, looks of home

This is a home for those who like their livability combined with the kind of dramatic features that neighbors and visitors discuss with admiration.

In designing the latest House of the Week, architect Samuel Paul catered to the needs of the family requiring a spacious three-bedroom home but also asking for something a little different.

He obtained the desired result with a daringly asymmetrical front gable, fully glazed planes; picturesque cathedral ceilings; and a floor plan that is unusual yet efficient. Among other conversation items is a brick fireplace in the living room, another in the master bedroom.

The distinctive exterior of this ranch house carries out its promise as soon as one moves into the entrance. It's via a sheltered front porch which flows into the long reception foyer. The foyer, in turn, leads to the rear family room.

One cathedral ceiling sweeps across all these spaces, producing a striking front-to-rear panorama. The living room, which adjoins the foyer at front, is also roofed with a cathedral ceiling, accounting for the previously mentioned eye-catching front gable.

Note that the end of the brick fireplace wall in the living room is flanked by picture-style windows, one of which is part of that room, the other part of the master bedroom, a most unusual and effective design arrangement.

Across the foyer from the living room is the dining room, with large windows overlooking the front of the house. These three areas combine to make a formal entertaining zone, distinctively separate from the informal sections to the rear.

The kitchen is what is generally referred to as "country style" because it is spacious and has a roomy eating area within itself.

It can be reached from either the front foyer or the rear service entrance without trafficking through any other rooms. There are three large windows wrapping around the corner of the kitchen, overlooking the trellised rear garden and porch. Features of the kitchen include a built-in freezer, a built-in oven and a dishwasher, in addition to a pass-through to the family room.

The family room is distinct enough to serve as a true second living room if desired. There is a provision for a decorative screen separating the family room from the bedroom hall.

The bedroom wing has three bedrooms, two large baths and a profusion of closet space, including a roomy walk-in in the master bedroom. And last, but not least, is the brick fireplace in the master bedroom.

Ample storage space is included in the two-car garage for toys, lawn equipment, etc. And behind the garage is a service-laundry area, with a lavatory and a rear door that permits entry to the garage, the kitchen or the stairway to the basement.

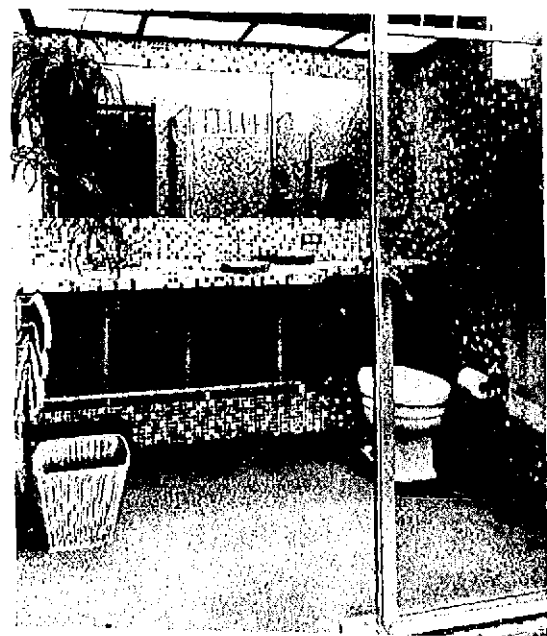

A brick front and brick planters add to the curb appeal of the front of the house. Wide overhangs and deeply-grooved channel lapped vertical siding create an interesting texture to the other sides.

Inside or outside, Design G-1,

G-1 STATISTICS

Design G-1 has a living room, dining room, long foyer, family room, kitchen, three bedrooms, two full baths and a lavatory, a service area, covered front porch, rear porch and two-car garage. Total habitable area of this ranch home is 1828 square feet. Over-all dimensions are 74 feet by 43 feet 11 inches. Features include cathedral ceilings, two fireplaces and plenty of closet space. The plans include a basement.

Lawn and Garden

GARDEN TOOLS

To help home gardeners make landscaping look professional, General Electric has introduced a hedge and shrub trimmer, and a grass trimmer with self-sharpening scissors-type blades. Both trimmers utilize the standard power unit which drives all GE power and garden tools.

GROUND COVER

A new permanent, flowering ground cover, developed for many uses, adds beauty to banks and slopes—and one planting is forever! Once in the ground, it requires no maintenance beyond a thorough watering during the first 15-day period, and never needs mowing.

Name of the plant is Peangift Crownvetch. These other advantages are cited: This tough perennial is winter-hardy and drought-resistant, chokes out weeds, grows well in full sun or semi-shade. Its pink, white and lavender blossoms increase in profusion from year to year.

Until recently, industrial users have snapped up all the Crownvetch obtainable. Now it is available in sufficient quantities to accommodate homeowners, too.

LAWN SPREADER

liquid lawn spreader, from Amchem Products, Co., Ambler, Pa. Unit can be pushed or pulled like a reel-type lawnmower. It's for rent or sale at hardware stores.

Some Need Sump Pump

One of the most popular home improvements this year is converting the basement into a livable area.

Whether the basement becomes a family room, utility room, workshop, extra bedroom or a combination of these, one thing is sure. It holds a lot of valuable equipment that must be protected against basement flooding.

Best insurance against basement flooding is a sump pump, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

Sometimes called a cellar drainer, the pump is installed in a pit or sump. When water in the pit reaches a predetermined level, a float switch automatically starts the pump. It operates until all the water has been drained out, when shutoff also is automatic.

Basement flooding most frequently results from heavy rains. However, if the home has an overhead sewer, water from plumbed-in appliances can't drain away by gravity, and a sump pump is needed.

Plumbing contractors can advise about sump pumps.

Stroudsburg, Pa.

The nostalgic and never-ending appeal of an old Cape Cod home is brought back in the lovely design of the latest House of the Week.

This is what might be called a Cape Cod plus. Note that the left part of the house is, in itself, a full six-room cottage, with four rooms downstairs and two upstairs. This is a typical Cape Cod that might have jumped right out of the 18th century to the present. But note, too, that architect Samuel Paul has added a one-story wing, tastefully integrated with main structure, true to style in every respect.

The entire exterior retains all of the charm typical to those homes, with such trademarks as small dormers, a recessed entry, narrow wood siding with some occasional wide boards, small-paned windows, shutters and flower boxes. This effort to retain true character has been carried out on all four sides; not, as sometimes happens, only in the front.

As a result of the inclusion of the wing, there is enormous flexibility in the design. In fact, the entire wing might be skipped during the original construction, if desired, then added at a later date. On the other hand, the wing could be utilized for additional living space by adding an upper floor to the garage, a contingency for which the architect has provided in the plans. And while we are discussing flexibility, leaving the upstairs area of the basic house unfinished until there is a need for its planned two bedrooms and bath.

Modernity takes over on the interior of the house. The conveniences are many and varied, and the zoning is good. The entrance foyer is large and well-closeted. From it, one can move to the kitchen, the living room-dining room area or the bedrooms without crossing any other rooms. There is a sweep of 30' along the living and dining rooms. A sliding glass door leads from the dining room to a flagstoned rear patio. Another sliding glass door leads from the fireplace family room to a porch. The eat-in kitchen is made airy and cheerful by a large bay window, located directly over the sink.

There are four bedrooms in the basic house, two downstairs, two up. Each pair of rooms has a huge bath. The one on the second floor is compartmented into two sections. It has a stall shower, a tub and a large vanity which wraps around into the front dormer. There is an abundance of closets in both bedroom areas, including a generous walk-in upstairs.

An interesting feature of the house is the second front entrance, leading to the right-hand or wing section. In this area are a laundry room, a half-bath, storage and shop facilities, and two-car garage. The plans include a stairway to an upper garage floor, suitable for living quarters, such as a rumpus room or a studio. This can be a small, medium or large house, depending on the needs of the family. The basic house, without the second floor, has a habitable area of 1592 square feet. There are 168 square feet upstairs—and 304

BEWARE OF THE HOME IMPROVEMENT "GYP"

You will be money ahead if you follow these five hints.

1. Check any "bargain" offer presented by a stranger that seems unrealistic BEFORE you deposit any money or sign any agreement.
2. Let NO ONE begin any work on your property before you ascertain reliability of the firm they represent.
3. Beware of the "Bargain Job", or any idea that your home will be a "model home" for "advertising" purposes, entitling you to a rebate or commission or a "Special Offer" that will soon expire.
4. Insist on knowing the TOTAL cost of labor and materials. . . don't rely on verbal promises. Require the solicitor to leave proposed forms with you for further consideration, and refuse to deal with him further if he is unwilling to comply.
5. Remember the firm may not be too greatly interested in the matter of materials, quality or payment, because it will have a Mechanics lien on your property in case of non-payment.

MAY WE SUGGEST

Before you purchase any home improvement deal from strangers consult a local attorney, merchant, contractor, Chamber of Commerce or the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co.

Colonial design offers daylight levels

"Raised ranch" and "Sunken two-story" are among the various terms used to describe the type of house where more of the rooms is at ground level.

The latest House of the Week is that kind of home. It has two levels, the main one half a flight above the foyer, the other half a flight below it. This design takes advantage of extra living quarters without the necessity of full foundation walls, which would be the case if there were a basement.

Incorporated into this bi-level pattern is the forthright charm of Colonial styling, a look as distinctive as a hallmark on old silver. The symmetrical placement of the windows and columns, the double front door and the graceful, high-rise portico combine to show off the fine proportions of the house.

All the principal rooms, including three bedrooms, are on one level—the upper level. A long private balcony at the rear is accessible from the family room, the dining room and the master bedroom.

Immediately upon entering the house, through the covered front portico and into the foyer, one is confronted with an eye-catching, carved staircase.

Up a few steps and to the right is the living room, with a full-length window seat, alcove under a triple window. Opposite the window seat is a fireplace, and behind the fireplace, in the family room, is a built-in barbecue, utilizing another fire in the same chimney. The family room adjoins the kitchen, with an almost complete opening between the two, thus permitting the homemaker to keep an eye on the children while preparing meals.

On the other side of the kitchen is the dining room, another convenience at meal time. Sliding glass doors in this dining room lead to the rear balcony, which can be utilized for eating in good weather.

The bedroom wing is at the left of the house. Note how much closet space Architect Lester Cohen has placed there. The traffic circulation also is good. The youngsters in the family, or anyone else for that matter, can get to any of the bedrooms or to the family room or kitchen, without crossing the living and dining rooms.

There are two baths, one accessible from the master bedroom.

The lower level can be finished as architect Cohen has planned it or finished later when the budget and family needs permit. There is a large recreation room, with glass doors leading to a lower terrace under the balcony.

An outdoor stairway links the lower and upper outdoor areas. A hobby room adjacent to the recreation room can be shut off from it by a folding door.

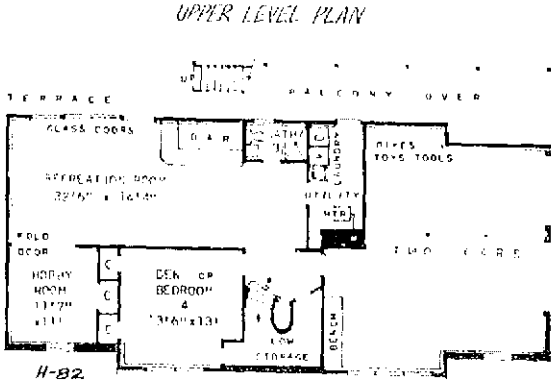

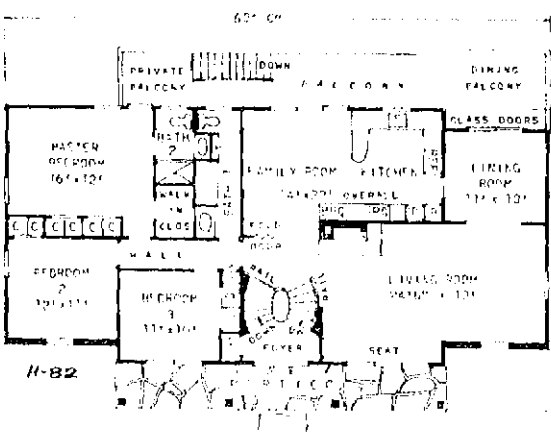

There is a third bath on this level, next to a combined laundry-utility section opening to the rear yard. A front den can be used for a fourth bedroom if needed.

The room has two conventional closets as well as a special low storage area under the stairs.

A two-car garage on the lower level is large enough for a workbench, bikes, toys and a considerable amount of garden equipment as well as the automobiles.

Since the garage is entered from the side, and the exterior blends with the rest of the house, it is difficult to determine from the front just where the garage is located.

The living area of Design H-82 is 1667 square feet, excluding the lower level, most of which can be made habitable whenever desired.

H-2 STATISTICS

Design H-82 has a living room, dining room, family room, kitchen, foyer, three bedrooms, two baths, a foyer, covered front porch and private rear balcony on the upper level, with a habitable area of 1667 square feet. If the lower level is used as designed by architect Lester Cohen, it will have a recreation room, hobby room, fourth bedroom or den, laundry-utility area, two-car garage and plenty of storage space. Over-all dimensions are sixty feet by twenty-eight feet, which include both the front portico and rear balcony.

Installing a resilient tile floor in the home is simply a matter of following the instructions on the box. But, like sewing a dress or making a boat, there are parts of the job that require special care.

First, choose the tile carefully — type, color and design. The family will be living with it a long time.

Vinyl asbestos tile wears well, comes in a wide variety of patterns and colors and is easy to maintain, says the Better Floors Council.

Before the floor is installed, the subsurface should be carefully checked for any unevenness. It must be free from wax, paint, oils, grease or varnishes. Floor covering dealers will be able to advise on the best underlayment for the area.

As many resilient tile designs are now available in 12-by-12 inch squares, it's easy to figure how many will be needed. The number is the same as the square footage of the room. In a 10-by-12 foot room, 120 12-by-12 inch tiles (10 per cent of the total) will be needed, for cutouts and future replacement in case of damage.

If nine-by-nine inch tiles are used, about 200 will be needed for a 10-by-20 foot room.

After the subsurface is smooth and clean, mark the center point of the room with a taut chalk line. Begin by marking the centers of the two end walls of the room, snap the string to transfer the chalk to the floor, and repeat on the two side walls. Where the chalk lines meet is the center of the room.

These two chalk lines must be at an exact right angle. You can check this way: Starting from the center point where the lines meet, measure exactly four feet toward a side wall and make a mark. Do the same toward the opposite wall.

Starting from the center once more, measure three feet toward an end wall. Make a third mark. Using a long ruler or tape, lay it between the first and third marks. The distance should be exactly five feet. So should the other side.

Using the chalk lines as a guide, lay two unceremented rows of tile perpendicular to each other, marking off one-quarter of the room. Adjust the test row so that the tile is about six inches from the wall for 12-inch tile, and four and one-half inches for nine-inch tile. This insures an even border around the room.

Remove the rows of test tile and spread the recommended adhesive over that quarter of the room, being careful not to cover the chalk line. Spread adhesive evenly and not too thickly. Be sure to follow manufacturer's instructions.

one. Continue for each quarter of the room.

When finished, check the floor carefully and remove any adhesive from the face of the tile. Use a putty knife or water and a steel wool pad. Wait a week before washing the new floor.

More detailed instructions appear in a booklet, "Installing Resilient Floor Tiles." To obtain it, send 25 cents and a long stamped self-addressed envelope to Better Floors Council, 101 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017. Adhesive must be dry to the touch before laying tile.

Starting at the center, carefully place each tile—don't slide—butting each to the adjoining the more common shrubs offered for sale to home owners, according to experts. Often the difference in price may be only nominal for a variety that is outstanding and will give pleasure for many years.

The best way to obtain the best varieties is to go to the best nurseries and mail order catalogs. These nurseries constantly are on the lookout for the newly developed shrubs having superior characteristics.

Three-bedroom ranch has family room

Here's a house that suits a growing family, yet can serve the parents when the youngsters go off on their own.

Architect Lester Cohen, in designing the latest House of the Week, has taken into account the need for privacy, for outdoor space within sight and control of the kitchen-dining area, and for a section that can be converted to a different use when the occasion demands.

The heart of this three-bedroom, two-bath ranch is a living room extending from the flagstone porch at the front of the house 20 feet to the rear, with windows at either end providing cross ventilation and double exposure.

The adjacent dining room has the same kind of ventilation-exposure arrangement, except that glass doors at the rear of the dining room lead to a patio set within the structure of the house. This entire area is distinctive, separated by a fireplace and its raised, extended hearth, with built-in TV-Hi-Fi at the end.

The kitchen has the L-shaped layout of work counters that housewives like so much. And there is ample space for a dinette corner close to the rear windows overlooking the patio. But the kitchen is not too big for the time when the children will have married. Off the kitchen is a laundry-mud room, ready access to the garage and stairway to the basement.

Note that the floor plans say that the patio is an optional family room. We can see now why architect Cohen placed most of the patio between the living room and the laundry-mud room, with only a small portion extending beyond the regular rear line of the house.

It's so that conversion to a family room, probably when the children reach their teens, will be practical and relatively inexpensive. This would not be so if the patio were located directly behind the house.

The design of the bedroom wing also takes today and tomorrow into account. The youngsters will stay tidy in the comfort-sealed bedrooms with the closet wall between. They have the main bathroom to themselves and can stay clear of the living area when their parents are entertaining guests.

The master bedroom serves as a quiet zone for the parents when the children are using the living room when it is finished.

The early dressing room to the master bedroom is lined with eight closets, quite a feature in itself and one that any homemaker will welcome. Adding to the privacy is a shower bathroom, acting as an additional buffer against noise.

The value of well-defined sections cannot be overestimated, as anyone who has two or three children can testify. Later, when the children have left, the two smaller bedrooms are ideal for overnight guests, yet will need little attention when not in use.

Although the habitable area of Design H-98 is a modest 1512 square feet, there's a first impression of bigness after walking across the front porch into foyer. This illusion is created by the immediate view across both the living and dining rooms, a feeling enhanced by the front-to-rear expanses in those two rooms as well as the kitchen.

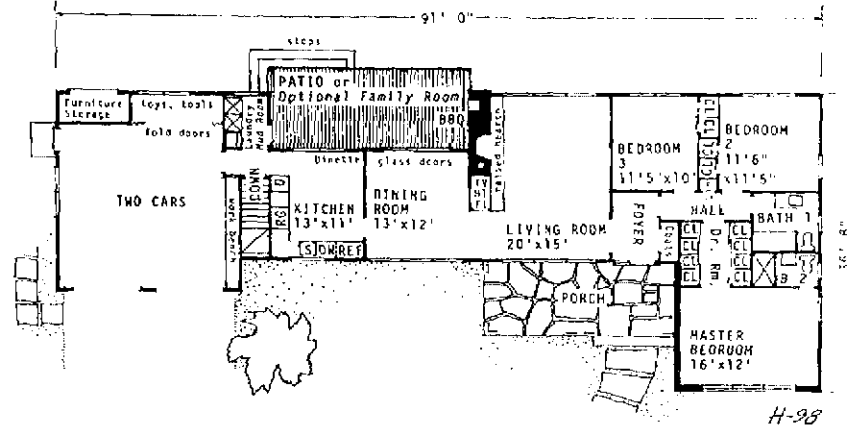

The two-car garage has room at one side for toys and tools behind folding doors. A convenient plus is a storage section which can be reached from the rear without going into the garage.

With a pleasant, smooth exterior, this house is neither old-fashioned nor ultra modern. It has the kind of clean lines that make it suitable for almost any neighborhood.

H-98 STATISTICS

Design H-98 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, laundry-mud room, rear patio that later can be converted to a family room, foyer, three bedrooms, two baths, a dressing room, a two-car garage and a large front porch. The total living area is 1512 square feet. Overall dimensions are 91' by 36' 8". The plans include a basement, with a stairway to it in the space between the kitchen and garage.

"Modern" Means Air Conditioned

Planning to modernize a home without including central air conditioning? It's almost a contradiction in terms: We've reached a point where a truly modern home will nearly always be centrally air conditioned, according to the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute.

Consider these facts: A Federal Housing Administrator pointed out that it will not be long before homes without air conditioning will be considered obsolete; a survey made for a national magazine showed that two out of three Americans now consider air conditioning a "necessity" in the home; one out of every three new homes built is centrally cooled; and two out of three of the savings and loan institutions surveyed by the U.S. Savings and Loan League said that air-conditioned homes are better mortgage risks.

Put all these things together, and there's one answer. Home air conditioning is an essential ingredient in a real home modernization program. It will make the home more comfortable, and it's an investment, not an expenditure, because a home owner usually recovers the initial cost if and when he sells the home.

Many owners of older homes feel that a central air conditioning system will cost too much. Until firm bids have been obtained, there's really no way of accurately estimating what the cost will be.

For homeowners interested in air conditioning, ARI recommends asking two or three reputable contractors to visit the home, study the problem, and then submit written bids. Compare proposals to determine a definite price.

It is possible to centrally air condition almost any home effectively, no matter its age, size, or design. The cost of adding a central cooling system will depend on where you start out from.

For example, if the home already has a warm air heating system, a contractor probably will recommend that heating ducts be used to cool the house in the summer. This means the only cost will be the cooling equipment and its installation. If there are no ducts, however, getting them installed will add to the costs.

If the home has hydronic or "wet" heat, cooling equipment with its own means of air distribution will have to be installed. Frequently, in hydronically-heated homes the contractor will recommend locating the air-conditioning equipment and ducts in the attic.

Modern air-conditioning equipment is compact, and there's usually no difficulty in finding a spot for it—in a basement, crawl space, attic, or even a closet.

A "split" cooling system reduces the amount of interior space needed. Evaporator coils are placed inside the home and the condenser-compressor located outside. About 80 per cent of all residential central cooling systems are of the "split" variety.

Proposals from contractors should be checked carefully to make certain they have recommended the same size of equipment. Note, too, whether the recommended equipment bears the ARI Seal of Certification.

This Seal shows that the equipment has been manufactured and capacity-rated in accordance with industry-wide standards, and that it has been subject to rigid inspection and testing procedures.

If any home improvement or modernization program is planned, it's logical and easy to have the home centrally air conditioned at the same time.

FOR THE FLOORS

Thanks to a relatively new installation technique, hardwood strip floors can be as adaptable to concrete slab bases as to conventional wood joist construction. The technique eliminates the expense of wood subflooring. Detailed instructions for this installation method are provided in a free illustrated leaflet from National Oak Flooring Manufacturers' Association, 814 Sterick Building, Memphis, Tenn. 38103.

FOR DECORATING

Cast from carvings made in hardwood, new plastic "Designer Carvings" come in the form of medallions, plaques and mouldings, which can be applied to doors or furniture, with nails or adhesive. For full-color brochure, free, write "Designer Carvings Decorating Idea Book," Filon Division, Vistron Corporation, 12333 South Van Ness Avenue, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

LIGHT TRANSFORMS THE KITCHEN. Here, slanted soffit has 40-watt fluorescent lamps, on top of the cabinets half-way back. Fluorescent lamps are mounted along wall cabinets and above sink, two 15-watt lamps above counters, and two 40-watt appliance lamps in the range hood. Four downlights illuminate bar area. Suggested by General Electric lighting experts.

New Lighting Improves Kitchen Look, Efficiency

It's a pretty safe bet that kitchen lighting needs updating—and this one change can make a dramatic improvement in the efficiency and beauty of the kitchen area.

Where is light needed? In a kitchen, it's needed on counter tops, at the range, at the sink, in the cupboards—plus general over-all lighting.

A surface-mounted fixture, equipped with a totally-enclosed dish or globe of diffusing material, is the simplest method of ceiling lighting. Make sure the unit has a diameter of at least 12 inches, so the 150 watts of light needed in it will not make the fixture overly bright to the eye.

At the other extreme is the wall-to-wall luminous ceiling plan, with a group of 40-watt fluorescent tubes mounted on the ceiling and a suspended corrugated vinyl plastic "ceiling" about 10 inches below them.

To light countertops, mount a single row of fluorescent tubes under the wall cabinets, either concealed behind the "lip" of the cabinet or equipped with shielding trim.

At the sink, a double row of fluorescents is needed, because the light has to travel a greater distance to reach the work area. An alternative plan is to surface-mount two 75-watt reflector floodlamps at ceiling level or recess them in the ceiling itself. This avoids the shadows created by a single downlight.

Building two stories without looking up

The two-story house has maintained its popularity over the years because it provides more living space on a smaller plot. Among its other desirable qualities is the privacy afforded by having the bedrooms on the second floor.

It is important these days, however, that a two-story house have a modern look. Care must be taken to avoid a vertical appearance. And there must also be the center-hall arrangement which has caught the fancy of the public because it permits good traffic circulation.

In the latest House of the Week, architect Herman H. York has given us just such a home, with heavy emphasis on the kitchen and family room area at the rear. Incorporated in the plan, too, is a raised living room, two steps above the main floor level.

Since a four-bedroom house needs ample living, dining and washing facilities to handle a large family, care has been taken in planning the room layout to balance room areas with proper relationship to their uses.

The family room-kitchen complex, totaling 36 inches in length, is conveniently located in relation to the rear dining and lounging terrace. It also is positioned to avoid a direct view from the more formal living and dining areas at the front of the house.

Resilient flooring is recommended for the kitchen and the fireplace family room, carpeting for the living and dining rooms.

Design H-89 is no exception to the trend toward generous foyers for that all-important first impression. The double front door, located in a covered entry, adds a touch of luxury in a dignified manner.

The open balustrade stair railing adds to the spaciousness of the entrance hall and to the raised living room.

In selecting bluestone, ceramic tile or paving tile for the foyer floor, care must be taken to select a pattern in proper scale with the stair railing design.

The balance of the first floor includes all essential elements. The wash-up lavatory and toilet are near the kitchen and the garage. The laundry is handy to the service area, a mud closet, broom closet and pantry round out a complete living unit.

Note the two ways of getting to the terrace from the house — one from the family room, one from the laundry room. This makes it possible for guests to be routed to the terrace without going through the main section of the kitchen.

The work area of the kitchen is not visible from the foyer. Instead, the scene is that of the dining table and a large window.

On the upper level are the four bedrooms and two bathrooms. The hall bath features twin lavatories, a convenience for handling the morning school hour rush. The main bedroom has a private bathroom and a walk-in closet of almost 50 square feet.

Three of the four bedrooms have cross ventilation, with the fourth having a large double window at the front of the house.

Architect York uses wide overhangs of roof and a cantilevered second floor to create deep shadows on the outside. He suggests the use of one color, plus white, to keep the exterior simple and restrained.

Horizontal lines are achieved with the use of a cornice over the front entrance and adjacent living room. The wide gable and overhangs contribute to this appearance. Contained in the over-all dimensions of 55 feet by 27 feet 8 inches of this house are 1076 square feet of living area on the first floor, 930 square feet on the second floor.

Architect York uses wide overhangs of roof and a cantilevered second floor to create deep shadows on the outside. He suggests the use of one color, plus white, to keep the exterior simple and restrained.

Horizontal lines are achieved with the use of a cornice over the front entrance and adjacent living room. The wide gable and overhangs contribute to this appearance. Contained in the over-all dimensions of 55 feet by 27 feet 8 inches of this house are 1076 square feet of living area on the first floor, 930 square feet on the second floor.

Tips Tell How To Modernize

Is a bathroom remodeling project on the agenda? Here are some tips.

1. In addition to the conventional three fixtures of tub, lavatory and water closet, more and more bathrooms are including bidets. This personal hygiene device, pronounced "bee-day," is installed next to the water closet.

For more information, write Plumbing Fixture Manufacturers Association, 1145 19th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20036 and ask for free bidet flyer.

2. Top-quality bathroom fixtures are stain- and acid-resistant, easier to keep clean, maintain luster longer. For information on how to recognize quality, the Plumbing Fixture Manufacturers Association (address above) has a free flyer entitled, "What You Should Know about Plumbing Fixtures for Your Home."

3. Don't have space for a bathroom? Investigate the possibilities of a compact powder room. Most older homes have such space in a closet, under a stairwell or at the end of a hall.

FOR HANDY WOMEN
A fix-it tool kit, designed for women, has been introduced by Fleet Tool Corporation. In decorator colors, the tools are shaped for a woman's hand with comfort grip handles and packaged in a storage rack that can be hung or stored flat for ready accessibility. Tools include pliers, hammer, wrench, screwdrivers and even screws and nails.

IN THE KITCHEN
For use as a kitchen work surface and food preparation area, is the Corning Counter-Saver, a flat, smooth sheet of pure white Pyroceram that fits into any kitchen countertop. Heat-proof, scratch-resistant, the Counter-Saver is designed for use in new construction or kitchen remodeling or for repairing damaged areas of existing countertops.

shower door folds to only 8", closed

Now there's a corner shower that, though space-saving, makes even a small bathroom look spacious.

It features a "column" that is actually an unusual folding shower door that moves on closed track to either side of the rounded corner shower receptor and takes up only eight inches when closed.

Manufacturers claim it is ideal for bathroom remodeling jobs as well as new home construction because it is easy to install and provides a spacious, elegant look in the shower area while taking up less space than the old fashioned conventional square or angle shower stalls with their rigid doors and walls. Showerfold Door Corp. makes it.

FOR THE FLOORS
Thanks to a relatively new installation technique, hardwood strip floors can be as adaptable to concrete slab bases as to conventional wood joist construction. The technique eliminates the expense of woodsubflooring. Detailed instructions for this installation method are provided in a free illustrated leaflet from National Oak Flooring Manufacturers' Association, 814 Sterick Building, Memphis, Tenn. 38103.

Modern home captures farmhouse look

In every home — small or large, ranch, split level or two story; contemporary or traditional—there's a favorite room or area. It's the place where the family congregates most of the time, where activities always seem to be going on — where the house is truly alive.

While this section isn't always definable before a family has moved in, it most certainly is in the farmhouse-type residence created by architect Herman H. York for the House of the Week series.

Basically a three-bedroom, two and a-half bath house, ex Pansion is possible for an additional two bedrooms and bath. Fine as this expandable feature is, especially for a family which is still growing, it must take second place to what we regard as the outstanding element in the well-designed floor plan. It's a combined farm room-kitchen so large, so inviting and so practical that it can't miss being the focal point of the house for parents and children alike.

This combined area is nearly 24 feet long, with a wood-beamed ceiling stretching its entire length. At one end, in the farm room, is a five-foot-wide fireplace and log on.

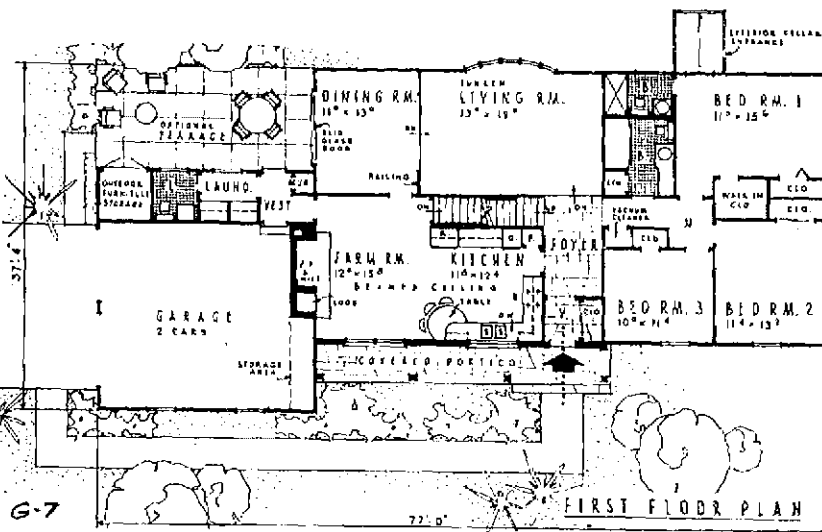

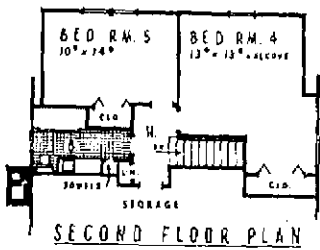

Pegged wood flooring adds to the atmosphere of Colonial America. The authentic flavor of this period is carried out, at the other end of the expanse, where the kitchen cabinets are of birch (or butternut, if desired) and where there is a three-quarter round table placed along the counter.

This table is at the end of the counter where it doesn't interfere with mother's kitchen duties nor intrude upon the wall space of the farm room.

The farm room-kitchen combination is at the front of the house, with windows looking out on the covered portico. It is directly to the right of the spacious foyer, which also leads to the living room or the bedroom wing without crossing any part of the house.

To the left of the farm room-kitchen are the laundry, mud closet, lavatory, garage entry and service door, nicely planned for convenience.

While it is going to be difficult to keep guests as well as family out of the attractive farm room-kitchen area, the living room has its own assets for formal entertaining. Its dropped floor adds to the ceiling height and gives an elegance to the adjoining dining room, which has a railed balcony to set it off.

The dining room uses sliding doors for access to the terrace, but architect York suggests that these can be eliminated in favor of either hinged, small-paned doors or a single Dutch door with windows on one or both sides — the choice depending on the type of decor.

The bedroom wing has three bedrooms and two baths, with the owners' bedroom having a walk-in closet and another six-foot closet for "his and her" storage.

There is a linen closet in the large bathroom for easy access to the towels and other items more conveniently stored there.

A Dutch dormer across most of the main section of the house provides full ceilings for extra bedrooms upstairs. In communities where two-family homes are permitted, one of these upstairs rooms may serve as a living room for one or two persons.

A small kitchenette can be added near the bathroom plumbing. But the second floor need not be finished when the house is built, or at all, for that matter. In that event, it would be cheaper to close the stairway just off the foyer, put a door at the low level and leave the walls unfinished.

The exterior beauty of Designer G-7 is achieved by simplicity and attention to detail. Wood panels under the bedroom windows, flanked by full-length shutters, add restraint yet preserve the farmhouse appearance.

The use of vertical battens over exterior-grade plywood also contributes to the architectural character of Colonial houses such as this. Note, too, how the use of ventilating wren houses at the gable ends provides ventilation while softening the appearance of such a triangular surface.

G-7 STATISTICS
Design G-7 has a living room, dining room, combination farm room-kitchen, three bedrooms and two baths on the main floor with 1604 square feet of habitable area. There are 522 square feet of living space on the second floor for those who desire to utilize it. In addition, there is a covered front portico, a laundry, mud closet, vestibule, furniture storage section, terrace and two car garage. Over-all dimensions are 77 feet by 37 feet by 4 inches.

ABOUT SHINGLES
Asphalt roofing shingles are now available in a wider range of colors than ever before, including black, white, pastels, blues and new "earth" and "forest" shades. Color treatment has also been improved, so shingle color is fade-resistant. New shingle shapes give the roof a designed look, and heavy-weight shingles, which have a thick edge, add deep shadow lines and a textured appearance.

Add Accessories, New Fixtures

Bedecked, bejeweled, exotic and colorful, the functional and formerly neglected bathroom is fast becoming, in many homes, the most-decorated, most-displayed room of all.

Yet, despite today's renaissance of the bath, it still suffers from neglect. Census Bureau figures show that more than 100 million Americans live in homes with obsolete plumbing.

A recent survey, the Cornell report, finds that lavatories are too small, too low and too little different from the Victorian wash basin. Bathtubs are unsafe and uncomfortable, showers are cramped and accidents through slipping are easy.

What can be done about it? Today, there are enough bathroom designs, enough accessories, enough equipment and enough materials with wide choices of colors and styles to satisfy the most demanding homemaker, says Sherie Wagner, custom designer of bathrooms.

All it needs is to lavish the same care in the selection of accessories, materials and equipment as is given to other areas of the home.

Colorful, washable vinyl wallpaper can hide drab plaster, and attractive shower curtains and bright new towels in coordinated colors can achieve a gay atmosphere without too much economic pain.

Bathrooms can be planned to meet such common demands as: better ventilation, half-washing facilities, more storage space, better hand-laundry facilities, a drinking fountain, more grab bars and seating space — and above all, better color and design.

Such practical improvements as controls just inside the shower to avoid getting scalded by reaching through the hot water, showers with built-in seats, hand sprays, recessed shelves and overhead lighting are some of the innovations recommended by Mr. Wagner.

There are custom cabinets to provide space for the growing number of items now used in the bathroom — cosmetics and medicines, electrical equipment such as shavers, toothbrushes, hair dryers, massage machines.

Better lighting and lavish use of mirrors can make shaving and make-up a joy instead of a chore.

Walls, floors, counters and accessories are made in materials easy to maintain, and for those who cannot afford such luxuries as marble or onyx, there are many sensible and attractive substitutes.

The choice of bathroom adornments is wide — less than 10 dollars to glamorize an electric bulb by covering it with a beaded "crystal overcoat," up to hundreds of dollars for an imported crystal chandelier.

Looking for Kitchen, He Sets Remodeling Record

Since better living through remodeling is essentially an American trend, Robert E. Todd of the Netherlands flew to Dallas, Tex., to plan "the best kitchen money could buy" for his wife's 25th wedding anniversary present — perhaps a long-distance remodeling record.

All wall and floor tile was replaced, a doorway was closed, and new cabinetry and wallpaper were ordered in this project. New appliances in the luxury kitchen included a gas broiler, refrigerator/freezer combination, two gas ovens, ice maker, two sinks, gas water heater and automatic dishwasher.

Since Todd rents his home, modernity and convenience were motivating factors in specifying this remodeling job. The American Gas Association, Inc. (A.G.A.) points out two other advantages of remodeling—higher property values and increased ease of sale.

Federal Housing Administration offices now give full appraisal value to a built-in range on mortgages, for instance, and most districts include drop-in or slide-in ranges, too. Built-in ovens, range hoods and dishwashers receive a universal acceptance by FHA, and central air conditioning is taken into account in 75 of 76 offices.

According to FHA and Department of Commerce statistics, the percentage of single-family homes sold with appliance "packages" included in the sale price increases every year. Soon, homes without such necessities will be regarded as outmoded.

In addition to kitchen remodeling, other popular home improvement ideas include patios, extra bedrooms and bathrooms, and furnished basements or playrooms.

For a deluxe remodeling project, A.G.A. suggests that an architect's creative ability and supervision of the job may be a good investment in the long run. Home improvement ideas also may be obtained from home magazines and utility home service departments.

Check On Roof For Repairs

Be Sure Your Decorating Expresses YOU... Become More Knowledgeable, Aware

Even though a homeowner dutifully cares for his house, he may often neglect inspecting the roof until it is too late. A driving rain, combined with wind and elements, can bring a number of serious leaks during just one overnight rainstorm, with resulting damage to walls, floors and furnishings.

Responsible roofers will check a roof free of charge and give estimates for any needed repairs or replacements. If re-roofing is necessary, the homeowner can select from a variety of heavy-weight fire-rated asphalt roofing materials.

If the home has a shingle roof, check the following trouble spots.

- 1. Damaged or Missing Shingles—If patches of shingles or single shingles are missing or loose, the roof is in an advance stage of deterioration.
- It takes a careful inspection to determine if portions of many shingles have broken off and blown away or if shingles have cupped or split. If so, a good rain and wind storm may start the bucket brigade.
- 2. Flashing—Anything that projects through the roof is a danger source for leaks. Metal flanges and collars around chimneys, pipes and vents are not only subject to rust, but the cement caulking eventually dries out and falls away, exposing openings to rain and moisture.
- Rusty spots should be painted to prevent further damage, and where rust has penetrated all the way through the metal, it must be replaced.
- 3. Popped Nails. If too-short nails have been used, wind may have loosened roofing nails so that heads are no longer in contact with the shingles.
- 4. Gutters and Gutter Hangers. Leaves and debris should be cleared from gutters, for better inspection of rust spots and rusted-out areas.
- Where gutter hangers have been nailed atop shingles, leaks can develop. Deterioration at this point may require replacement of the entire "starting" area of the roof shingles, even though the remainder of the roof may be in good condition.
- 5. Skylights. Check all flanges and flashings to make sure they are secure and unbroken and the seal around the glass (whether putty or a synthetic caulking material) is tight.
- 6. Bare Spots. A serviceable roof can eventually wear out. Look for patches of dark gray or black, which are more noticeable with light than with dark colored roofing.
- 7. Torn Hip and Ridge Shingles. Top edges of gables, hips and ridges are covered with special shingles. Check for broken or deteriorated roofing at these points. Leaks here can emerge inside at almost any point all the way down to the eaves.

Most often, re-roofing is a simple job. However, sometimes an older wood roof should be removed if it does not have proper nail holding power or shows evidence of dry rot.

A new plywood roof deck would then be applied over the joists to provide greater strength. With the many modern building materials available, a homeowner now can select prefabricated fire-rated asphalt roofing in a variety of colors, textures and patterns, with the assurance of the Underwriters' Laboratories "UL" seal for fire resistance.

What, exactly, is a Hepplewhite chair? More important, who wants to know?

To answer the second question first, it's safe to say the answer is millions of women. Standardized furnishings are a thing of the past. The current trend is toward decor that reflects a family's tastes and interests.

For years, most women followed one of two courses in selecting items for the home.

If their budgets permitted a fairly large expenditure, they consulted a decorator who planned a room, or an entire home, right down to the ash trays and the knobs on the doors.

If money was limited, they went to a favorite furniture or department store and picked the items that came closest to what they wanted. Either way, they often found themselves with a house full of furniture that could have belonged to anyone on the block.

Now, however, women are devising successfully into the art and craft of decoration. Taking into account the needs and wishes of their families, they're choosing appropriate color schemes, furniture and decorative touches that four walls into a home. And they have found that decorating is satisfying, exciting and simple.

If you want to personalize your own home, keep in mind just one basic rule: know before you buy. From three major sources of information, you can gain decorating skill in no time.

First, collect recent issues of several good decorating magazines and watch for decorating news in your newspaper's woman's pages. These publications contain room layouts, suggestions for solving specific architectural problems and innumerable color photographs of well-planned rooms. From the varied styles and color combinations, pick your favorites and file them for future reference.

Second, consult the Random House Dictionary of the English Language not only for definitions but for specific illustrations of styles and motifs. Among its 260,000 entries, this complete and up-to-date dictionary incorporates a vast number of words for the decorated homemaker. For example, it describes, shows and gives the origins of the Hepplewhite chair. It also explains other decorating terms, such as Art Nouveau, gate-leg table and nover. Even such obscure terms as zurl (an ornamental metal Levantine holder for a coffee cup without a handle), torti (a decorative gateway commonly found at the entrance to Shinto temples) and torus (semicircular molding forming the lowest member of the base of a column) are included. In most cases, definitions are accompanied by precise line drawings to help you visualize the items.

Finally, look for basic books on decorating at your local bookstore or the public library. In the supplemental material at the back of the Random House Dictionary, you'll find a listing of major reference books on the decorative arts. The books, dealing with furniture, fashion and antiques, were selected by a decorating expert. Each is timely and authoritative, and wonderfully helpful to a novice decorator.

Nothing compares with the personal touch. And today, signing your home with loving good taste is surprisingly easy.

Care and Maintenance

There are two basic kinds of floor waxes: self-polishing and the polishing type. Self-polishing wax comes in liquid form and has little odor. Spread on floors, it dries to a shiny finish that requires no buffing. Polishing wax, on the other hand, may be either a paste or a liquid. This type of wax requires buffing, but it gives you maximum protection and long-lasting luster. Liquid polishing wax cleans as you apply it so no scrubbing or mopping is necessary. If you use self-polishing wax, the floor must be cleaned and rinsed before application.

Split entry has dramatic effect

You might as well face it: If you like things that are ordinary, you're not going to be too pleased with the latest House of the Week.

It's for people who want something different, something with a touch of glamour. Architect Rudolph A. Matern has provided it in a two-level contemporary home replete with dramatic effects both inside and out.

Despite the many design features of this house, it is basically a split entry, a type of home that has risen to mass acceptability in recent years. You may have seen it referred to as a raised ranch.

To get a good mental picture of the split entry, think of a one-story ranch with basement which has been pulled out of the ground a few feet. The main part of the house is thus a little above ground level, the basement part a little below ground level.

One of the principal advantages of this construction is that the lower floor can have larger windows, more light and ventilation and, consequently, more all-around livability.

There are three bedrooms, two baths and a lavatory on the elevated or main level. The lower floor can be finished when the house is constructed or done at a later date, if desired, but there are two extra bedrooms in this area as architect Matern has designed it.

But either or both of these extra rooms can be used for studying or following a hobby

Note the unusual upper level layout. There are raised outside decks at either end. The one at the left of the house can be reached from either of two bedrooms. The one at the right is accessible through sliding glass doors from the living room or dining room. There is a four-sided view from the semi-octagonal living room.

While this is sufficiently dramatic in itself, a circular-banded wide open fireplace provides an additional highlight.

The service area at the rear of the house is modern in every respect, with a kitchen, raised breakfast section, plenty of cabinet and closet space, and a separate entrance.

The recreation room on the lower level is a twin of the living room above. It also has a fireplace, with a sunken porch under the deck and sliding glass doors leading to it.

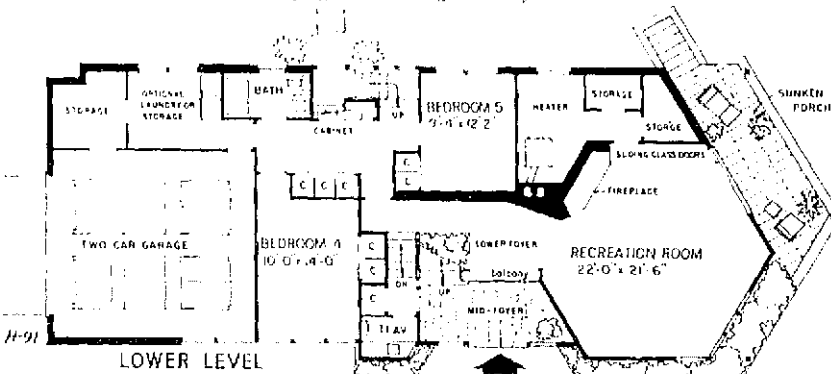

This floor also has two bedrooms, previously mentioned; storage and closet space almost everywhere you look; an extra bath and an extra lavatory; and an oversized two-car garage.

Traffic control in a split entry house is excellent, since from either the front or rear entrance no one enters either level unless it is his destination, thus avoiding unnecessary steps.

Another advantage in having the main floor raised above ground level is that the bedroom windows are four feet higher than normal, adding that much more to the privacy.

There is a mid-foyer and two smaller foyers. There are 1879 square feet of living area on the upper level, not including the decks and porches, with 1509 square feet on the lower level, not including the sunken porch and garage. Overall dimensions are 85 feet four inches by 30 feet two inches.
